Ford Workers Ignore 11th-Hour Conference And Start Walkout

DETROIT, May 5—Eighty-six thousand Ford employes at the Rouge and Lincoln-Mercury plants walked off their jobs today while an eleventh-hour conference aimed at averting the strike still was going on in downtown Detroit.

The walkout, unless settled, eventually will take in 118,000 Ford employes throughout the nation, hundreds of workers in tied-in supply houses and, observers say, could easily touch off a mass strike in the entire automobile industry.

As the workers streamed from the plants, UAW-CIO President Walter Reuther and Ford's industrial relations director, John S. Bugas, continued to lock horns in a stalemate over the union's charges of speedup at the plants.

A few minutes before noon, Bugas walked from the conference room in the Rackham Building to make a phone call. When asked by newsmen if any progress was being made, Bugas said curtly:

"None at all. None at all."

* * *

THERE WAS NO immediate comment from Reuther who appeared to hold the stage during the two-hour session with Ford officials. Newsmen were able to look into the conference room through windows and observe the frequent hand waving by the labor leader.

Most of the workers gathered outside the struck Ford plants as the noon deadline arrived. They unfurled strike banners and union men in sound trucks began giving orders for picketing the plants.

Shop committemen and members of the strike strategy committee of the UAW-CIO were called off their jobs at 8 a. m. to attend a mass meeting in the Rouge Local 600 hall for last-minute instructions.

At the Rouge foundry, men operating the electric and open hearth furnaces were ordered by the union not to load the furnaces after 9 a. m., three hours before the strike deadline. It takes three hours for the metal to cool in the furnaces.

A Ford spokesman said the union had given assurances that it would see to it that the furnaces are properly banked so as to avoid damage.

With only two hours to affect a settlement, the negotiators were attempting to solve the only issue of the dispute—alleged speedup of production.

The final meeting originally was set for 9 a. m. and then moved up to 10 a. m. after the union rquested that a downtown location be chosen instead of the Ford offices.

* * *

MEANWHILE, the company took all precautions against a walkout and moved vital records from the administration building near the Rouge plant to offices outside the strike zone.

The union had issued instructions directing Ford Local 600 to schedule members for picket duty.

A select team of UAW bargainers talked with Ford officials for nearly six hours yesterday in an attempt to effect an agreement that would dissolve the strike threat.

At the end of the night's discussions neither the union nor company representatives had an optimistic word on the progress of their conversations.

BERLIN BLOCKADE IS BOOKED TO BE LIFTED NEXT THURSDAY

Berliners Pleased By New Accord

Western Victory Is Being Claimed

BERLIN, May 5—Berlin rejoiced today over the East-West agreement to end the blockade of the city one week from now and interpreted the agreement as a Western victory in the major battle of the cold war.

There were no mass celebrations. But smiles everywhere replaced the usual worn and worry-laden expressions of Berliners, whose attitude was summed up by the lord mayor of the western sectors, Ernst Reuter:

"The agreement is a first-class defeat for Eastern Communist politicians."

For Berlin, the agreement lifts a fear that perhaps the West might have been forced to yield to Russian pressure and abandon the former German capital. They interpret the ending of the virtual siege of their city as a sure sign that Russia recognized the West could not be driven from Berlin by measures short of war.

* * *

MEANWHILE, the motors of the unceasing Allied Airlift continued to drone over the city, symbol of the power which brought about the Soviet concessions. On this day, their sound seems to bear a special note of triumph.

Significantly, the announcement of the decision to end the blockade came the same day as the airlift debut of the new U. S. Air Force strato-freighter, the YC-97, a giant cargo plane with a carrying capacity of 53,000 pounds.

Almost a year ago the Airlift was inaugurated with C-47 planes with a carrying capacity of only two tons.

The Soviet-controlled Berlin radio said:

"The good news of the significant agreement is on the same day of Gen. Clay's farewell review. The warmonger is gone."

Some West German politicians warned that rejoicing is premature until the Soviets and the West agree on a German peace treaty. Typical of this attitude was the statement of Dr. Walter

May 23 Big 4 Talk Scheduled

Germany Problem To Get New Airing

WASHINGTON, May 5 — The Big Four powers announced today that the Berlin blockade will be lifted unconditionally May 12 and the Council of Foreign Ministers will meet in Paris May 23.

The foreign secretaries of the United States, Britain, France and Russia will seek general settlement of German differences which have contributed to the cold war almost since the end of hostilities nearly four years ago.

Official announcement that the Berlin blockade ends next week after a year of mounting tension was made in a terse communique issued simultaneously in Washington, Moscow, Paris, London, and at United Nations headquarters in New York.

The U. S. State Department declined to comment on the agreement but diplomats said they are certain that Russia will not seek to reimpose the trade restrictions.

* * *

PRESIDENT Truman will be asked to express his views on the development at his regular weekly news conference late today.

The joint agreement stated—with no conditions—that "all the restrictions imposed since March 1, 1948" will be lifted.

No specific hour was set for the blockade lifting. It is presumed that the 10-months-long impasse will end at 12:01 a. m. May 12, Berlin time.

The agreement was transmitted to Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, accompanied by a letter signed by the three Western Powers requesting that the Security Council be notified of the accord.

The agreement to lift the blockade before convening the Big Four foreign ministers council represents a victory for the Western Powers.

The United States, Britain and France have consistently refused to negotiate with Russia on German problems until the blockade was ended.

Therefore, the Kremlin's agreement to end the blockade 11 days before the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers is a major concession on the part of the Soviet Union.

Russia's change in attitude is

Reds Using U.S. Planes

Commies Salvage Bombers, Fighters

SHANGHAI, May 5—Chinese Communists claimed today that they now have an air force of U. S.-made bombers and fighters, but did not say whether the force has joined the widespread fighting in South China.

According to a Peiping radio broadcast, the air force of B-25 medium bombers and P-51 fighters, was acquired through desertions of Nationalist pilots.

Its only acknowledged appearance has been in a Mukden May Day parade celebrating the fall of Nanking. The size of the force was unmentioned.

The broadcast gave no intimation whether the air force will be committed to the battle against Shanghai's defenses, where, according to Nationalist announcements, government troops are desperately battling a mass attack by 30,000 Communists.

* * *

THE FIERCE Communist assault appeared aimed at Kashing, key rail city on the 130-mile defense arc some 60 miles from Shanghai.

(Reports reaching Hong Kong, where there is no censorship, said the Nationalist garrison at Kashing is preparing to retreat along the railway leading to Shanghai's "back door."

(The Hong Kong reports said the Nationalists are preparing to make their next stand at Sunkiang, only 15 miles from Shanghai, where "pacification headquarters" is already organizing a local militia.)

Communist troops only 30 miles north and northwest of Shanghai appeared to be waiting for the drive from the south to gather more headway.

But, on the western extremity of the Communist offensive, the Communists claimed new gains. The Communist New China News Agency said that the town of Loping, 80 miles northeast of Nanchang, has been captured, and that spearheads have reached to within 50 miles of Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, which is 400 miles southwest of Shanghai.

Kinda Warm Wednesday? It's Ditto For Thursday

Ohioans sweltered under hot, humid mid-Summer weather conditions for the second day in a row Thursday as temperatures again soared toward record readings.

The mercury had climbed well into the 80s by mid-morning and, according to forecasters, with no rain in sight, temperatures likely will pass the 90-mark in many places.

Record readings were the order of the day Wednesday and 90-degree temperatures were commonplace.

The highest official reading was a 94 at Parkersburg, W. Va. However, 94s also were recorded unofficially in Youngstown and Springfield, 93 in Cincinnati and 92 in Chesapeake.

* * *

IN CIRCLEVILLE, sun suits came out of mothballs—but fast—as the mercury climbed up to a high of 91. The low was 54 Wednesday.

Thursday appeared well on the way of duplicating the Wednesday stint. At noon Wednesday the mercury stood at 80—rising. Ditto Thursday.

Cleveland's 88 equaled an all-time Spring high of 88 set April 24, 1888.

Sandusky's 88 also was a new all-time high for the day, cracking the former 87-mark set in 1938.

Two deaths, both involving swimmers attempting to escape the heat, were attributed to the weather.

Thomas Venable, 13, of Cincinnati, died in the Ohio river while swimming with friends. Rufus Parish, 45, of Newport, Ky., drowned in the Licking river where it joins the Ohio.

Mrs. Henrietta Alhouse of Newport collapsed Wednesday night because of the heat.

Observers said most of Wednesday's maximum temperatures probably will be reached or bettered Thursday.

They added that no rain is likely before Friday afternoon.

Not much relief can be expected after Thursday nightfall, the weatherman continued. He said the mercury is not expected to fall much below 70 in most places Thursday night.

Rescue Crews Say Hope Wanes For Trapped Men

GIRARDVILLE, Pa., May 5—Rescue crews labored with diminishing hope today to reach four men trapped in a burning hard coal mine at nearby Gilberton since late Tuesday night.

Neither sign nor sound has come from the quartet who were caught 800 to 1000 feet underground by a fire in Packer No. 5 colliery of the Gilberton Coal Co.

But observers early this morning declared a faint hope remained that the miners might have crawled into recesses on the third or fourth level of the shaft.

A state police spokesman at Frackville said rescue workers were forced back repeatedly by dense smoke after penetrating some 175 feet into the mine.

The entrapped miners were identified as William Kelly, 49, and Joseph Wowak, 34, both of Shenandoah, and Raymond Eye, 35, and William O'Brien, 53, of Girardville. All but Eye are married.

Pumps were kept busy emptying water from the bottom of the deep shaft. Efforts were also being made to drop a large funnel into the pit and to blow fresh air through it with a giant fan.

Brutal Beating Hearing Booked

COLUMBUS, May 5—Timothy Talbert is to be arraigned here tomorrow in connection with the brutal beating of a Bexley housewife and her six-year-old son.

The injured woman, Mrs. Clarice Devere, 32, filed charges of assault with intent to rob and breaking and entering yesterday after Talbert confessed the crimes.

Police quoted the confession as saying Talbert slipped into the house intending to ransack it, but was surprised by young Randolph Devere.

They said he knocked the child unconscious with a toy revolver he found in the house, then clubbed the mother into insensibility.

NEVER SAW ACCUSER, CLAIM

Ex-State Liquor Chieftain Denies He Given Bribe

COLUMBUS, May 5—A. E. Oppenheimer flatly denied today that he had ever asked London Hotel Operator Gilbert Shively for a bribe nor that he had received money from Springfield Tavern Owner Howard McCall.

The former Ohio chief liquor permit examiner was testifying in his own defense against an indictment that he had sought money from Shively in exchange for a quick delivery of a license permit. He said:

"I told him (Shively) that I had nothing to do with issuing permits."

Oppenheimer also said that McCall had never been in his office and that he had never seen McCall.

The Springfield man testified earlier that he gave Oppenheimer six $50 bills in the liquor agent's office for a quick permit.

Shively, the state's star witness, had told the jury earlier that Oppenheimer asked him for $2300 in Oppenheimer's room in the Deshler-Wallick hotel Feb. 15, 1948.

* * *

THE LONDON hotel operator also said that Oppenheimer dropped the price to $1500 in a phone conversation Feb. 19, 1948, before turning Shively over to a "mysterious boss."

Shively's story was that the "boss" again reduced the price to $1,000 in another phone conversation the following day and told him to bring it to the Deshler room where Scioto County Republican Chairman Hugh H. "Happy" Ruel was registered. Ruel is under a joint indictment with Oppenheimer.

Oppenheimer explained from the stand that Shively came to his room Feb. 15, at the instigation of a mutual friend, Portsmouth Cab Operator Tracy Pack.

The liquor agent said he told Shively at that time he had nothing to do with the issuance of permits, but that he would arrange Shively's introduction to Permit Chief R. S. Wood.

Oppenheimer admitted he explained the value of a night club permit to a hotel operator but said that was the only conversation he had with Shively concerning the London man's application.

The defense had fought bitterly against the introduction of hotel and telephone company records as evidence.

Oppenheimer was to be followed on the state later in the day by Ruel.

* * *

OPPENHEIMER freely admitted the Feb. 19 call to Shively today but explained it was merely to notify the hotel operator he had made the appointment with Wood.

Oppenheimer said Pack had been present at all times during the Feb. 15 hotel room conversation. Pack had testified that he left Shively alone with Oppenheimer and returned to his own room.

At least three other witnesses—Mrs. Ruel, a clerk from the LaSalle hotel in Portsmouth and a member of the Scioto County GOP Central Committee also were to testify for Ruel. They will try to show he could not possibly be the mysterious "boss" who called Shively from the Deshler.

Attorney Stanley Schwartz said he expected to wind up the defense for his client, Oppenheimer, today. Former Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert said he would take over to show that Ruel could not have been in the Deshler on Feb. 20, 1948, when Shively said he was told to bring $1000 to Room 718 where Ruel was registered.

Bandit Quartet Nets $25,000

CLEVELAND, May 5 — Four armed men waylayed a Cleveland bank vice-president today and robbed him of approximately $25,000 in cash.

The four, using two cars, forced the official, William Ziemba, to the curb in his car and made him turn over a box containing the money. Ziemba was carrying the money from a Cleveland Trust Co. bank to the Lincoln Heights Savings and Loan Co., with which he is affiliated.

'Jesse James' Thugs Get Terms

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 5—Two Youngstown youths who participated in the Jesse James holdup of a passenger train at Martinsburg, W. Va., today headed for federal prison.

The youths, Luman Ramsdell, 23, and George L. Ashton, 20, were sentenced by Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins to 20-year terms in jail for the March 9 holdup of a Baltimore and Ohio train which netted approximately $1000.

Soviets Still Needle Lift

General Says Reds Doing No Harm

FRANKFURT, May 5 — Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, boss of the blockade-busting U. S. Airlift to Berlin, disclosed today that Russian planes have been menacing U. S. aircraft in the Airlift corridors several times a week.

Gen. Tunner added, significantly:

"But they did not interfere. Russia did not block any tonnage going into Berlin."

Wartime commander of the airlift which carried supplies to Nationalist China over the "Hump," the New Jersey-born general is probably the world's outstanding expert on airlift operations. He declared:

"We could set up a similar operation in any part of the world. Neither geography nor weather could stop it."

While most observers interpret Soviet willingness to end the blockade as a tribute to the success of the Airlift, Tunner emphasized that the "Airlift will continue to operate until higher Air Force headquarters tells us to stop."

* * *

HE DECLINED to speculate whether the mass of U. S. transport planes brought to Germany would stand by as a protective measure in case the Soviets reimpose the blockade. He said merely:

"We, are all very, very happy and pleased to have had the opportunity to assist in the solution of a difficult political problem."

Tunner paid tribute to the approximately 10,000 Air Force men who participated in the air transport of more than 1.5 million tons of vital supplies to Berlin.

He said that even when many experts predicted that Winter would diminish the effectiveness of the Airlift, "we in the Air Force knew that Operation Vittles would succeed in beating the starvation of Berlin."

Dewey To Run Again? 'Nope!'

NEW YORK, May 5 — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey wasted no words today when asked if he ever would run for President again.

The twice-beaten Republican presidential candidate was asked the question as he boarded the Liner Queen Mary for a European vacation.

He grinned and replied: "Nope!"

Conscience Bares Theft

TIFFIN, May 5—A conscience that bothered him for three years landed 30-year-old Kenneth Dunn, in the lockup today.

Police here said that Dunn, a Tiffin construction worker, telephoned from Lorain to admit stealing a car in 1946.

Police Chief Harold J. Fraley took the call. An hour later, Lorain police picked up Dunn and held him for return to Tiffin.

What's This? 'Foster Father' Says 96-Inch-Long Baby Is Born Here

A baby 96 inches long was born in Circleville Wednesday night.

Time of birth was 10:02 p.m.

Place: the General Electric lamp factory.

"Ed Grigg, "foster father" of the "baby" and general manager of the GE plant here, reported Thursday that all was well following the birth.

He explained that the "baby" was a new-type Slimline fluorescent lamp. It is 96 inches long, same as conventional Slimlines, but is one and one-half inches in diameter. Conventional Slimlines are one inch in diameter and produce only half the light of the new tube.

In other words, the new Slimline is the same diameter as old-type fluorescent lamps but is eight feet long. It contains the new instant-starting feature of the conventional Slimline.

The new "baby" will get a lot of pampering in the GE plant here, but a big future is ahead. Grigg said machinery is being installed for mass production of the bigger Slimlines and they should be rolling out in another four or five weeks.

"The Circleville plant eventually will be the sole producer of the bigger Slimline, Grigg reported proudly.

Self-Tutored Appeal Denied

COLUMBUS, May 5—A convict who taught himself law in his penitentiary cell lost his appeal to the Ohio state supreme court today.

The high court refused to review the appeal of Ray C. Blackburn, 29, of Akron, who was convicted of the $31,000 payroll robbery of the B. F. Goodrich Co., on June 24, 1947.

Blackburn entered the penitentiary the following Nov. 26 to serve a 10-to-25 year term for armed robbery. Since then he has prepared a legal brief, some two inches thick, which he presented to the high court in his fight for freedom. The court, however, ruled that his appeal presented no debatable constitutional question.

'You're Crazy,' Quads' Mother Tells Doctor

NEW YORK, May 5 — Quadruplets, one of whom failed to show up in pre-natal x-rays, are on the doing nicely list today in New York's Lebanon hospital.

So is the mother of the once-in-676-799-cases-babies — two girls and two boys, whose combined weight was two ounces short of 18 pounds.

The mother is Mrs. Ethel Collins, 28, who has a son, 2½ years old. The father, Charles Collins, 29, is a Wall Street brokerage firm clerk.

The delivery required 40 minutes, the hospital reported, and although x-rays showed only three babies, the fourth, and lightest—with a weight of three pounds, seven ounces—was not unexpected.

The other three babies weighed four pounds, 15 ounces; four pounds, three ounces, and five pounds, five ounces. They will be named Andrew, Edward, Barbara and Linda.

While the babies slept blissfully in their incubators, the father recovered from the shock to announce:

"I'm a big boy. I can take it. You can say Papa is bearing up very well."

Immediately after the birth, when the doctor told her she had quadruplets, Mrs. Collins groggily said:

"You're a gosh-darned fibber, you're crazy, doctor."

Neither sign nor sound has come from the quartet who were caught 800 to 1000 feet underground by a fire in Packer No. 5 colliery of the Gilberton Coal Co.

But observers early this morning declared a faint hope remained that the miners might have crawled into recesses on the third or fourth level of the shaft.

A state police spokesman at Frackville said rescue workers were forced back repeatedly by dense smoke after penetrating some 175 feet into the mine.

The entrapped miners were identified as William Kelly, 49, and Joseph Wowak, 34, both of Shenandoah, and Raymond Eye, 35, and William O'Brien, 53, of Girardville. All but Eye are married.

Pumps were kept busy emptying water from the bottom of the deep shaft. Efforts were also being made to drop a large funnel into the pit and to blow fresh air through it with a giant fan.

Brutal Beating Hearing Booked

COLUMBUS, May 5—Timothy Talbert is to be arraigned here tomorrow in connection with the brutal beating of a Bexley housewife and her six-year-old son.

The injured woman, Mrs. Clarice Devere, 32, filed charges of assault with intent to rob and breaking and entering yesterday after Talbert confessed the crimes.

Police quoted the confession as saying Talbert slipped into the house intending to ransack it, but was surprised by young Randolph Devere.

They said he knocked the child unconscious with a toy revolver he found in the house, then clubbed the mother into insensibility.

Self-Tutored Appeal Denied

COLUMBUS, May 5—A convict who taught himself law in his penitentiary cell lost his appeal to the Ohio state supreme court today.

The high court refused to review the appeal of Ray C. Blackburn, 29, of Akron, who was convicted of the $31,000 payroll robbery of the B. F. Goodrich Co., on June 24, 1947.

Blackburn entered the penitentiary the following Nov. 26 to serve a 10-to-25 year term for armed robbery. Since then he has prepared a legal brief, some two inches thick, which he presented to the high court in his fight for freedom. The court, however, ruled that his appeal presented no debatable constitutional question.

NEVER SAW ACCUSER, CLAIM

Ex-State Liquor Chieftain Denies He Given Bribe

COLUMBUS, May 5—A. E. Oppenheimer flatly denied today that he had ever asked London Hotel Operator Gilbert Shively for a bribe nor that he had received money from Springfield Tavern Owner Howard McCall.

The former Ohio chief liquor permit examiner was testifying in his own defense against an indictment that he had sought money from Shively in exchange for a quick delivery of a license permit. He said:

"I told him (Shively) that I had nothing to do with issuing permits."

Oppenheimer also said that McCall had never been in his office and that he had never seen McCall.

The Springfield man testified earlier that he gave Oppenheimer six $50 bills in the liquor agent's office for a quick permit.

Shively, the state's star witness, had told the jury earlier that Oppenheimer asked him for $2300 in Oppenheimer's room in the Deshler-Wallick hotel Feb. 15, 1948.

• • •

THE LONDON hotel operator also said that Oppenheimer dropped the price to $1500 in a phone conversation Feb. 19, 1948, before turning Shively over to a "mysterious boss."

Shively's story was that the "boss" again reduced the price to $1,000 in another phone conversation the following day and told him to bring it to the Deshler room where Scioto County Republican Chairman Hugh H. "Happy" Ruel was registered. Ruel is under a joint indictment with Oppenheimer.

Oppenheimer explained from the stand that Shively came to his room Feb. 15, at the instigation of a mutual friend, Portsmouth Cab Operator Tracy Pack.

The liquor agent said he told Shively at that time he had nothing to do with the issuance of permits, but that he would arrange Shively's introduction to Permit Chief R. S. Wood.

Oppenheimer admitted he explained the value of a night club permit to a hotel operator but said that was the only conversation he had with Shively concerning the London man's application.

The defense had fought bitterly against the introduction of hotel and telephone company records as evidence.

Oppenheimer was to be followed on the state later in the day by Ruel.

• • •

OPPENHEIMER freely admitted the Feb. 19 call to Shively today but explained it was merely to notify the hotel operator he had made the appointment with Wood.

Oppenheimer said Pack had been present at all times during the Feb. 15 hotel room conversation. Pack had testified that he left Shively alone with Oppenheimer and returned to his own room.

At least three other witnesses—Mrs. Ruel, a clerk from the LaSalle hotel in Portsmouth and a member of the Scioto County GOP Central Committee also were to testify for Ruel. They will try to show he could not possibly be the mysterious "boss" who called Shively from the Deshler.

Attorney Stanley Schwartz said he expected to wind up the defense for his client, Oppenheimer, today. Former Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert said he would take over to show that Ruel could not have been in the Deshler on Feb. 20, 1948, when Shively said he was told to bring $1000 to Room 718 where Ruel was registered.

Bandit Quartet Nets $25,000

CLEVELAND, May 5 — Four armed men waylayed a Cleveland bank vice-president today and robbed him of approximately $25,000 in cash.

The four, using two cars, forced the official, William Ziemba, to the curb in his car and made him turn over a box containing the money. Ziemba was carrying the money from a Cleveland Trust Co. bank to the Lincoln Heights Savings and Loan Co., with which he is affiliated.

'Jesse James' Thugs Get Terms

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 5—Two Youngstown youths who participated in the Jesse James holdup of a passenger train at Martinsburg, W. Va., today headed for federal prison.

The youths, Luman Ramsdell, 23, and George L. Ashton, 20, were sentenced by Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins to 20-year terms in jail for the March 9 noldup of a Baltimore and Ohio train which netted approximately $1000.

Soviets Still Needle Lift

General Says Reds Doing No Harm

FRANKFURT, May 5 — Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, boss of the blockade-busting U. S. Airlift to Berlin, disclosed today that Russian planes have been menacing U. S. aircraft in the Airlift corridors several times a week.

Gen. Tunner added, significantly:

"But they did not interfere. Russia did not block any tonnage going into Berlin."

Wartime commander of the airlift which carried supplies to Nationalist China over the "Hump," the New Jersey-born general is probably the world's outstanding expert on airlift operations. He declared:

"We could set up a similar operation in any part of the world. Neither geography nor weather could stop it."

While most observers interpret Soviet willingness to end the blockade as a tribute to the success of the Airlift, Tunner emphasized that the "Airlift will continue to operate until higher Air Force headquarters tells us to stop."

• • •

HE DECLINED to speculate whether the mass of U. S. transport planes brought to Germany would stand by as a protective measure in case the Soviets reimpose the blockade. He said merely:

"We, are all very, very happy and pleased to have had the opportunity to assist in the solution of a difficult political problem."

Tunner paid tribute to the approximately 10,000 Air Force men who participated in the air transport of more than 1.5 million tons of vital supplies to Berlin.

He said that even when many experts predicted that Winter would diminish the effectiveness of the Airlift, "we in the Air Force knew that Operation Vittles would succeed in beating the starvation of Berlin."

Dewey To Run Again? 'Nope!'

NEW YORK, May 5 — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey wasted no words today when asked if he ever would run for President again.

The twice-beaten Republican presidential candidate was asked the question as he boarded the Liner Queen Mary for a European vacation.

He grinned and replied: "Nope!"

Conscience Bares Theft

TIFFIN, May 5—A conscience that bothered him for three years landed 30-year-old Kenneth Dunn, in the lockup today.

Police here said that Dunn, a Tiffin construction worker, telephoned from Lorain to admit stealing a car in 1946.

Police Chief Harold J. Fraley took the call. An hour later, Lorain police picked up Dunn and held him for return to Tiffin.

'You're Crazy,' Quads' Mother Tells Doctor

NEW YORK, May 5 — Quadruplets, one of whom failed to show up in pre-natal x-rays, are on the doing nicely list today in New York's Lebanon hospital.

So is the mother of the once-in-676-799-cases-babies — two girls and two boys, whose combined weight was two ounces short of 18 pounds.

The mother is Mrs. Ethel Collins, 28, who has a son, 2½ years old. The father, Charles Collins, 29, is a Wall Street brokerage firm clerk.

The delivery required 40 minutes, the hospital reported, and although x-rays showed only three babies, the fourth, and lightest—with a weight of three pounds, seven ounces—was not unexpected.

The other three babies weighed four pounds, 15 ounces; four pounds, three ounces, and five pounds, five ounces. They will be named Andrew, Edward, Barbara and Linda.

While the babies slept blissfully in their incubators, the father recovered from the shock to announce:

"I'm a big boy. I can take it. You can say Papa is bearing up very well."

Immediately after the birth, when the doctor told her she had quadruplets, Mrs. Collins groggily said:

"You're a gosh-darned fibber, you're crazy, doctor."

What's This? 'Foster Father' Says 96-Inch-Long Baby Is Born Here

A baby 96 inches long was born in Circleville Wednesday night.

Time of birth was 10:02 p.m.

Place: the General Electric lamp factory.

"Ed Grigg, "foster father" of the "baby" and general manager of the GE plant here, reported Thursday that all was well following the birth.

He explained that the "baby" was a new-type Slimline fluorescent lamp. It is 96 inches long, same as conventional Slimlines, but is one and one-half inches in diameter. Conventional Slimlines are one inch in diameter and produce only half the light of the new tube.

In other words, the new Slimline is the same diameter as old-type fluorescent lamps but is eight feet long. It contains the new instant-starting feature of the conventional Slimline.

The new "baby" will get a lot of pampering in the GE plant here, but a big future is ahead. Grigg said machinery is being installed for mass production of the bigger Slimlines and they should be rolling out in another four or five weeks.

"The Circleville plant eventually will be the sole producer of the bigger Slimline, Grigg reported proudly.

The new agreement is expected to remove the case from the hands of the Security Council.

The negotiations leading up to the agreement have been conducted primarily between United States Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup and the Soviet delegate to the United Nations, Yakov Malik.

However, the British and French representatives, Sir Alexander Cadogan and Jean Chauvel, participated in the final four-power meeting yesterday and approved the communique.

The delicate negotiations looking to a settlement have been carried on in New York City and at the United Nations session at Lake Success.

Lifting of the year-long Russian blockade of Berlin and of the counter-blockade of Eastern Germany by the Allies will be "unconditional."

This means that from May 12 on, trains, trucks, and canal boats will be free to cross from the Allied sector into the Russian occupation zone of Germany, and vice versa.

Diplomats are particularly anxious to get a peace treaty for Germany in preparation for the next important move—an attempt to bring about an over-all government for Germany which would be under four-power control.

Big Business Urged To Adopt Voluntary Limit

WASHINGTON, May 5—Sen. Flanders, (R) Vt., proposed today that big business adopt a policy of "voluntary limits" on expansion.

Flanders warned that "great social and political changes" in American life will develop if power continues to be concentrated in a very few people.

For one thing, Flanders told the 37th annual U. S. Chamber of Commerce meeting, it probably will mean paralleled expansion in government and labor.

At the same time, former Rep. Dirksen, (R) Ill., cautioned that Americans "better think seriously about controlling big government before it controls them."

Donald R. Richberg, former leading New Deal lawer, declared that labor, too, is reaching garagantuan proportions.

Richberg told Chamber delegates that "bigness in labor and in government are inevitable products of bigness in business."

All three men appeared on a special forum, discussing "must we control business." Each gave their ideas on separate phases of the problem.

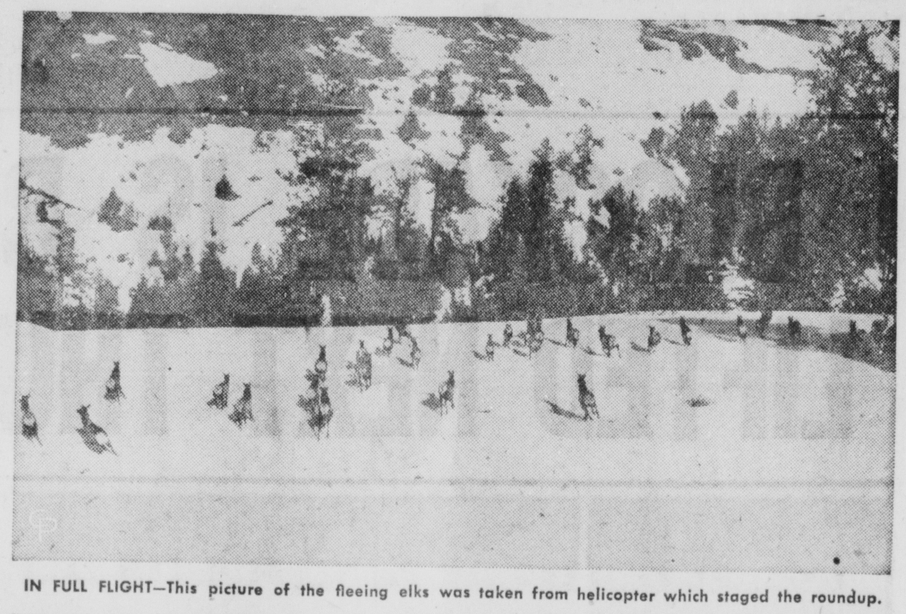
RIDING THE RANGE—BY HELICOPTER

Flying Craft Rounds Up Thousands of Elk From Orchards



IN FULL FLIGHT—This picture of the fleeing elks was taken from helicopter which staged the roundup.

GIT ALONG, LITTLE ELKIE!—Headed in the right direction—away from the threatened apple orchards.

By BOB J. BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash. — That most versatile machine of the air age—the helicopter—has been employed during the past few years in a multitude of novel tasks—everything from rescuing an expectant mother from a snowbound wilderness cabin to carrying suburban mail.

Chalk up another one!

Out in the Pacific northwest, a helicopter is used in a manner that would literally curl the whiskers of many an old backwoods hunter.

Washington state game department officials, stymied in their efforts to rout more than 5,000 lordly elk out of orchard valleys, finally hired a "flying windmill" to do the job.

Even game department officials were surprised when it worked.

Last fall, this huge herd of elk, together with additional thousands of their fellow animals, roamed their wild habitat where there was sufficient natural fodder, out of reach of man except during the hunting season.

However, when winter set in, deep snows covered all natural grazing land, and drove the elk out of the Cascade mountains and foothills to the apple orchards and ranches of central Washington.

Here the elk found enticing food—the tender, juicy buds of countless thousands of apple trees, which go a long way toward supplying the United States and the world at large with Delicious, Winesap, Jonathan and other varieties of fine apples.

* * *

HOWEVER, even the apple buds were not sufficient food for the elk, and game officials spent $12,000 for hay alone to help keep the animals alive.

However, the enraged ranchers weren't worrying too much over the fate of the elk—they didn't want their 1949 apple crop ruined before the trees even had a chance to blossom.

They demanded that the game officials drive the animals out of the orchards back to the 30,000-acre Oak Creek game refuge, and feed the elk there.

It was easy for the ranchers to talk about rounding up the elk, but another thing to make it stick.

Some ranchers joined forces with dozens of game department men and sportsmen, on horseback and in trucks, to drive the four-footed apple-destroyers from the orchard areas, but met with only mild success.

The elk speedily outdistanced the mounted horsemen, and trucks were unable to out-maneuver the elk in most cases.

Herds of the big animals proved unusually erratic and swift whenever the roundup crews came into sight. They just didn't want to be herded like their more domestic relatives of the range.

Stationing of guards at the orchards also proved unsuccessful in stemming the destructive attacks on the trees, and some ranchers threatened to shoot the elk in "self defense" of their precious potential fruit crops.

Fingernail-chewing game officials, whose roundup crews were now weary and half frozen with the bitter cold, suddenly hit on the idea of using a helicopter.

One of the machines was hired from a Yakima, Wash., aviation firm, and the fidgety, elusive elk met their Waterloo.

The big animals obeyed implicitly as the helicopter hovered directly over them at orchard after orchard, scaring them with the loud "whooshing" of the rotors and heading them for the game refuge.

Elk could skitter away from a herd in all directions, but it was only a matter of minutes before the helicopter pilot would have them all back together.

Now, the rambunctious elk are back on the refuge. A large portion of the Pacific northwest apple crop is saved; it might otherwise literally have been "nipped in the bud." And the orchard owners and ranchers have laid down their rifles.

To forestall another elk-raid in future winters, biologists are endeavoring to improve browsing conditions on the game refuge, so the elk will "stay put."

County Slow In Backing Boy Scout Program

Pickaway countians will decide within the next few weeks whether the Boy Scouts are to continue here on an organized basis. The Scout movement requires $3,600 to operate during 1949. Of this amount, only 20 percent has been raised.

Churches that sponsor Scout troops and cub packs have been asked to conduct a house to house solicitation so that everyone who believes scouting to be worthwhile will have opportunity to contribute toward the $3,600 budget.

A house to house canvass is already underway in Ashville where the town's four churches sponsor a Scout troop and cub pack.

The money raised here for scouting helps to maintain a resident field executive whose duties are to assist the 85 volunteer Scout workers in the county.

All money raised here is spent in Pickaway County for scouting and much more in addition. The Franklin County Community Chest helps support Pickaway scouting by paying top supervision, providing office help and maintaining Camp Lazarus.

If Pickaway scouting were self-supporting, a budget of $5,000 would be required.

Harold Hill New Monumental Group Chieftain

Harold Hill was elected new president to the Pickaway County Monumental Association Wednesday night.

The association is a composite group of veterans who served in both world wars, and the association superintends Circleville Memorial Hall, takes care of Memorial Day rites, attends the Soldiers' Statue in Forest cemetery and registers and cares for soldiers' graves in the cemetery.

Other officers elected to the association were Ed Ebert, secretary-treasurer; Reynold Greene, Fred Trimbly and John Bolender, trustees; and Blanche Motschman and Russell Liston, directors.

Ebert was appointed by the association as chairman of the annual Memorial rites, including supervision of the parade and of the military rifle salutes.

Hill was named superintendent of Memorial Hall, and will govern functions in Memorial Hall. He replaces Ebert in this capacity and succeeds Bolender as association head.

Berliners Pleased By New Accord

"THE SOVIET agreement is no humanitarian gesture and we must wait for practical results to whether the Soviets are willing to grant Germany free democratic government and real peace."

Gen. Sir Brian K. Robertson, British military governor in Germany, said today: "I have no instructions to withdraw the Airlift and don't propose to do so."

Robertson made the statement at a Berlin news conference commenting on announcement of the lifting of the blockade.

The British commander urged that the German people proceed quickly with establishment of a West German state under a constitution "under which the German people can live happily, peacefully and proudly."

Robertson praised Gen. Clay "whose determination and inspiration during the early days of the blockade were of utmost value to our cause."

3 Newsmen Held By Russians In East Germany

BERLIN, May 5—U. S. officials sought today the release of three newsmen arrested by the Russians last night.

Richard S. Weil, INS Berlin bureau chief; Allyn Baum, International News Photos cameraman; and Bill Hansher, of The London Daily Express, were seized while seeking first-hand information on reports that the Soviets were easing restrictions on travel along the Berlin-Helmstedt autobahn.

They were arrested near the border of the Soviet zone shortly after driving off in their car.

Three miles inside the Soviet zone, Weil succeeded in slipping a note to a German woman who passed by the car, which was guarded by Russian soldiers.

Weil, who risked his life recently to slip behind the iron curtain and obtain a first-hand account on life in Eastern Germany, also was arrested by the Russians last month.

The Russians questioned him for 90 minutes on that occasion before releasing him.

Lausche Gets Small Slice Of Gambling Plan

COLUMBUS, May 5 — Gov. Frank Lausche got a very small slice of his anti-gambling loaf today when the Ohio senate's judiciary committee, by a 6-0 vote, recommended his padlock bill for passage.

The bill would authorize the governor to instruct the attorney general to institute padlock proceedings against any premises used for commercial gambling.

However, the major portion of his anti-gambling program remains virtually dead in the same committee.

That is his bill to permit the governor to remove from office any sheriff who does not enforce the laws—a power he already has over mayors.

The committee some time ago "indefinitely postponed" action on the sheriff bill, which generally is tantamount to killing the measure. The vote then was 7-0.

However, Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland) has since said that she would move to revive the measure, although she as yet has not done so.

RIDING THE RANGE—BY HELICOPTER

Flying Craft Rounds Up Thousands of Elk From Orchards

IN FULL FLIGHT—This picture of the fleeing elks was taken from helicopter which staged the roundup.

GIT ALONG, LITTLE ELKIE!—Headed in the right direction—away from the threatened apple orchards.

By BOB J. BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash. — That most versatile machine of the air age—the helicopter—has been employed during the past few years in a multitude of novel tasks—everything from rescuing an expectant mother from a snowbound wilderness cabin to carrying suburban mail.

Chalk up another one!

Out in the Pacific northwest, a helicopter is used in a manner that would literally curl the whiskers of many an old backwoods hunter.

Washington state game department officials, stymied in their efforts to rout more than 5,000 lordly elk out of orchard valleys, finally hired a "flying windmill" to do the job.

Even game department officials were surprised when it worked.

Last fall, this huge herd of elk, together with additional thousands of their fellow animals, roamed their wild habitat where there was sufficient natural fodder, out of reach of man except during the hunting season.

However, when winter set in, deep snows covered all natural grazing land, and drove the elk out of the Cascade mountains and foothills to the apple orchards and ranches of central Washington.

Here the elk found enticing food—the tender, juicy buds of countless thousands of apple trees, which go a long way toward supplying the United States and the world at large with Delicious, Winesap, Jonathan and other varieties of fine apples.

* * *

HOWEVER, even the apple buds were not sufficient food for the elk, and game officials spent $12,000 for hay alone to help keep the animals alive.

However, the enraged ranchers weren't worrying too much over the fate of the elk—they didn't want their 1949 apple crop ruined before the trees even had a chance to blossom.

They demanded that the game officials drive the animals out of the orchards back to the 30,000-acre Oak Creek game refuge, and feed the elk there.

It was easy for the ranchers to talk about rounding up the elk, but another thing to make it stick.

Some ranchers joined forces with dozens of game department men and sportsmen, on horseback and in trucks, to drive the four-footed apple-destroyers from the orchard areas, but met with only mild success.

The elk speedily outdistanced the mounted horsemen, and trucks were unable to out-maneuver the elk in most cases.

Herds of the big animals proved unusually erratic and swift whenever the roundup crews came into sight. They just didn't want to be herded like their more domestic relatives of the range.

Stationing of guards at the orchards also proved unsuccessful in stemming the destructive attacks on the trees, and some ranchers threatened to shoot the elk in "self defense" of their precious potential fruit crops.

Fingernail-chewing game officials, whose roundup crews were now weary and half frozen with the bitter cold, suddenly hit on the idea of using a helicopter.

One of the machines was hired from a Yakima, Wash., aviation firm, and the fidgety, elusive elk met their Waterloo.

The big animals obeyed implicitly as the helicopter hovered directly over them at orchard after orchard, scaring them with the loud "whooshing" of the rotors and heading them for the game refuge.

Elk could skitter away from a herd in all directions, but it was only a matter of minutes before the helicopter pilot would have them all back together.

Now, the rambunctious elk are back on the refuge. A large portion of the Pacific northwest apple crop is saved; it might otherwise literally have been "nipped in the bud." And the orchard owners and ranchers have laid down their rifles.

To forestall another elk-raid in future winters, biologists are endeavoring to improve browsing conditions on the game refuge, so the elk will "stay put."

County Slow In Backing Boy Scout Program

Pickaway countians will decide within the next few weeks whether the Boy Scouts are to continue here on an organized basis. The Scout movement requires $3,600 to operate during 1949. Of this amount, only 20 percent has been raised.

Churches that sponsor Scout troops and cub packs have been asked to conduct a house to house solicitation so that everyone who believes scouting to be worthwhile will have opportunity to contribute toward the $3,600 budget.

A house to house canvass is already underway in Ashville where the town's four churches sponsor a Scout troop and cub pack.

The money raised here for scouting helps to maintain a resident field executive whose duties are to assist the 85 volunteer Scout workers in the county.

All money raised here is spent in Pickaway County for scouting and much more in addition. The Franklin County Community Chest helps support Pickaway scouting by paying top supervision, providing office help and maintaining Camp Lazarus.

If Pickaway scouting were self-supporting, a budget of $5,000 would be required.

Harold Hill New Monumental Group Chieftain

Harold Hill was elected new president to the Pickaway County Monumental Association Wednesday night.

The association is a composite group of veterans who served in both world wars, and the association superintends Circleville Memorial Hall, takes care of Memorial Day rites, attends the Soldiers' Statue in Forest cemetery and registers and cares for soldiers' graves in the cemetery.

Other officers elected to the association were Ed Ebert, secretary-treasurer; Reynold Greene, Fred Trimbly and John Bolender, trustees; and Blanche Motschman and Russell Liston, directors.

Ebert was appointed by the association as chairman of the annual Memorial rites, including supervision of the parade and of the military rifle salutes.

Hill was named superintendent of Memorial Hall, and will govern functions in Memorial Hall. He replaces Ebert in this capacity and succeeds Bolender as association head.

Berliners Pleased By New Accord

"THE SOVIET agreement is no humanitarian gesture and we must wait for practical results to whether the Soviets are willing to grant Germany free democratic government and real peace."

Gen. Sir Brian K. Robertson, British military governor in Germany, said today: "I have no instructions to withdraw the Airlift and don't propose to do so."

Robertson made the statement at a Berlin news conference commenting on announcement of the lifting of the blockade.

The British commander urged that the German people proceed quickly with establishment of a West German state under a constitution "under which the German people can live happily, peacefully and proudly."

Robertson praised Gen. Clay "whose determination and inspiration during the early days of the blockade were of utmost value to our cause."

3 Newsmen Held By Russians In East Germany

BERLIN, May 5—U. S. officials sought today the release of three newsmen arrested by the Russians last night.

Richard S. Weil, INS Berlin bureau chief; Allyn Baum, International News Photos cameraman; and Bill Hansher, of The London Daily Express, were seized while seeking first-hand information on reports that the Soviets were easing restrictions on travel along the Berlin-Helmstedt autobahn.

They were arrested near the border of the Soviet zone shortly after driving off in their car.

Three miles inside the Soviet zone, Weil succeeded in slipping a note to a German woman who passed by the car, which was guarded by Russian soldiers.

Weil, who risked his life recently to slip behind the iron curtain and obtain a first-hand account on life in Eastern Germany, also was arrested by the Russians last month.

The Russians questioned him for 90 minutes on that occasion before releasing him.

Lausche Gets Small Slice Of Gambling Plan

COLUMBUS, May 5 — Gov. Frank Lausche got a very small slice of his anti-gambling loaf today when the Ohio senate's judiciary committee, by a 6-0 vote, recommended his padlock bill for passage.

The bill would authorize the governor to instruct the attorney general to institute padlock proceedings against any premises used for commercial gambling.

However, the major portion of his anti-gambling program remains virtually dead in the same committee.

That is his bill to permit the governor to remove from office any sheriff who does not enforce the laws—a power he already has over mayors.

The committee some time ago "indefinitely postponed" action on the sheriff bill, which generally is tantamount to killing the measure. The vote then was 7-0.

However, Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland) has since said that she would move to revive the measure, although she as yet has not done so.

State Scholarship Tests Due Saturday

A total of 33 Circleville high school boys and girls will participate in the final district-state scholarship exams in Ohio State University Saturday.

According to Principal J. Wray Henry, the youngsters will enter 14 different exams in the finals, vying for statewide scholarship honors.

George D. McDowell, county school superintendent, said there probably would be an equal number entering the competition from the county system. He said, however, that he would not know how many participated until the results were returned.

CIRCLEVILLE'S representatives in the state test will be as follow: Gordon Blake and Gene Clifton, biology; Robert Phillips, chemistry; Roy Denham, physics; Anne Downing, Margery Greiner and Robert Moeller, algebra I; William Stout, James Bartholomew and Donald Rhoads, plane geometry; Robert McAlister and Richard Stein, American history; Edward Wolfe and Patricia Yaple, senior social studies.

Charlotte McConnell, David Parks and Paul Rooney, English 9; Ronald Melvin, Evelyn Turner and Jacquie Lyn Turner, English 10; Nancy Eshelman, Norma Howard and Ruth Troutman, English 11; Lannie Given, Marilyn Schumm and Mary Ellen Young, English 12; Janet Grant and Jacqueline Smith, Latin I; John Lampson and Beverly Reid, Latin II; and Lois Campbell, Edward Hixenbaugh and Thomas Phillips, bookkeeping I.

741 Jail Meals Are Served Here

Prisoners in Pickaway County jail were served a total of 741 meals during April, according to Sheriff Charles Radcliff. He added that total cost of the meals for the 46 men and three women prisoners during the month was $247.

Each prisoner is allowed $1 a day for meals, or 33 and one-third cents per meal for the three meals served, the sheriff explained.

Canton Unions Fear Slump, Demand Parley

CANTON, May 5—The Stark County Industrial Union Council last night called for a nationwide conference between President Truman and leaders of industry, business, agriculture and labor in an effort to solve the unemployment problem.

The move came after steel production of the Republic Steel Corp., in the Canton-Massillon district, largest producing center in the world, was cut to less than 50 percent of capacity. Officials of the steel company said that more than 2,000 employes have been laid off at the Canton and Massillon plants since last December.

John S. Johns, head of the industrial council, proposed the presidential conference at a meeting last night.

"What is happening in the present slump is man-made and therefore man can correct the situation," Johns said. He added that "things look black for labor in the next 30 days if the present trend continues."

Sure we have some terrific rug bargains, and you might get the impression from our ads that rug prices have come down . . . but that is not the case. Most pattern prices are about the same as they have been.

Suddenly Alexander Smith reduced several patterns in each price range, and they really cut them, no one seems to be able to tell us why—naturally the other rug companies did the same.

We bought all the bargains the salesmen had to offer. After all, if we can bring you a first quality rug which has been selling $10 to $20 higher, and get it for you at that saving, that is our job.

So we do have some terrific bargains for you in Alexander Smith, Mohawk, and Firth 9 x 12 wool rugs. But . . . when these are gone we honestly don't believe we'll again have such wonderful buys for quite a while.

If you need a 9 x 12 wool rug we advise seeing these. We've sold lots of them already but there is still a good selection.

CHARLIE HARDIN IS CITED

Pickaway Youth Racks Up Top 8th Grade Test Score

Charlie Hardin of Pickaway Township school achieved the highest grade in the county school system in the recent eighth year state exams.

Hardin, son of John Hardin, the school's superintendent, scored a total of 178 points in the exam, 12 points higher than any other county score.

Highest possible score in the exam, according to County Superintendent George D. McDowell, was set at 200.

Altogether, six county boys and girls ranked in the upper one percent of the state on the tests, while 68 others achieved grades ranking them in the upper 25 percent of the county.

State certificates of achievement are to be awarded to Hardin, Richard Smith of Madison, Carl O'Hara of Saltcreek, Effie Rose Hobble of Atlanta, Paul Teegardin of Ashville and Robert Bowers of Ashville.

* * *

THOSE YOUNGSTERS who are to receive county certificates are Virginia Grove of Ashville; Norman Downs of Muhlenberg; Rose Schull of Ashville; David Hatfield of South Bloomfield; Charles Martindale of Madison; Shirley Dunlap of Williamsport; George Cremeans of Jackson; Donald Delong of Saltcreek; Robert Wolford of Jackson.

Dewey Chaffin of Ashville; Alger Bayes of Monroe; Robert Copeland of Walnut; Bertha Eakin of Pickaway; Bonetta Adams of Wayne; Mary Ann Atwood of Jackson; Betty Krimmel of Jackson; Betty Furniss of Darby; Robert Downs of Darby; Beverly Tucker of Saltcreek; Rosemary Fisher of Walnut; George Minshall of Saltcreek.

Harold Metzger of Madison; Dema Puffinbarger of Atlanta; Maribelle Huffman of Saltcreek; Ralph Nungster of South Bloomfield; Donald Campbell of New Holland; Charles Brown of Williamsport; Victor Pontius of Pickaway; David List of Pickaway; Mona Jean Haynes of Saltcreek; Rose Eccard of Walnut; Mary Haynes of Wayne; William Evans of Pickaway; Eugene Cook of Washington.

Gregg Riegel of Walnut; James L. Jones of Walnut; Mabel Franks of Ashville; Alberta Carpenter of Muhlenberg; Bobby Lee Hill of Walnut; Glenn Williams of Wayne; Theodore Vincent Jr., of New Holland; Virginia Ames of Scioto; Marguerite Kinch of Monroe; Alice Teets of Williamsport.

Rosemary Rihl of Williamsport; Ruth Owens of Walnut; Charles Smith of Jackson; Faye Leasure of Williamsport; Phyllis Florence of Walnut; Noell Rader of Ashville; Everett Wetherell of South Bloomfield; Donald Davis of Wayne; Florence Tussing of Duvall; Frank Henson of Muhlenberg; Ramon Bullock of Walnut.

Martha Ann Neff of Monroe; Audrey Thacker of New Holland; Peggy Orihood of New Holland; Charles Stage of Darby; Dale Rogers of Wayne; Linda Silbaugh of Walnut; Barbara Stoer of Muhlenberg; Kenneth Smith of Walnut; William Streber of Washington; Elmer Winner of Washington; and Ronald Wilson of South Bloomfield.

McDowell said the county median in this year's test was 103, a large increase over the county median of last year which he said was 89.5. A total of 366 pupils took this year's exam.

Rubber Railroad Deal Shelved By Committee

COLUMBUS, May 5—The proposed Ohio "rubber railroad" was snapped into virtual oblivion today.

The house commerce and transportation committee, by a 12-4 vote, "indefinitely postponed" consideration of a house bill to give the right to condemn rights-of-way to the proposed 130 mile, $210 million conveyor belt between the Ohio river and Lake Erie.

"Indefinite postponement" is tantamount to killing a measure.

A similar bill still has a vague lease on life in a senate subcommittee, but even if the subcommittee should report it back to the full judiciary committee, it would still have to clear the senate before coming to the house—and then, in all probability, going to the same committee that sidetracked the house measure.

Both bills proposed to clear the way for the establishment of an overland conveyor belt to carry coal, iron ore and limestone between East Liverpool and Youngstown on the river and Cleveland and Lorain on the lake.

In Norway city folk are given an extra gas ration to visit out-of-town blueberry patches. The term, "blueberry driving" has found a spot in Norway's post-war vocabulary.

JUDGED BEST of fifty-three dogs in New York's Greenwich Village Humane League pet parade, "Lady Bonnie" is held by her proud mistress, little Elaine Vanderhoff (right), 7, as the Rev. Irving Wildey blesses the pets during a "Be Kind to Animals" Week ceremony. (International)

Another Novice Flier Is Awarded His 'Wings' Here

Another novice flier officially won his private pilot's "wings" here Wednesday.

He was Willard R. Williamson of Greenfield who appeared before Robert Swift of Circleville to get the go-ahead from the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Swift, manager of Circleville's Thomas Airport and official CAA examiner for Central Ohio, reported Williamson completed the test in tip-top fashion.

Williamson reported Swift to be a detail-demanding judge. Strapping on parachutes, the would-be pilot and the "judge" went aloft in the student's plane and a long 40 minutes of examination followed.

The Greenfielder was commanded to display "all the tricks in the book and a couple of others I'm not sure I ever heard of," he reported.

* * *

SWIFT EXPLAINED that "air safety is of primary importance. The CAA wants its examiners to be able to say after each checkout that 'this pilot is qualified to take up my youngster anytime.'"

The Greenfield youth was the third man cleared here so far this week. With the coming of warmer and better flying weather, Swift anticipates a near land-office business in checking out pilots seeking both preliminary and advanced CAA permits.

Williamson was brought to the local air strip by his Greenfield instructor, H. E. Johansen, one-time Navy multi-motor pilot who was assigned to the Alaskan area. Johansen operates the Greenfield airport.

FBI Locates Man Wanted In Fraud Case

CLEVELAND, May 5 — The Cleveland office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported today that William W. Easterday, notorious "confidence man" wanted in connection with Toledo fraud, has been captured in Frankfort, Ind.

Special Agent Ray J. Abbaticchio Jr., said Easterday, former Toledo White Construction Co. head, and alleged perpetrator of a $150,000 fraud, was traced to the Indiana city through exhaustive "investigative activity."

Easterday, who operated the White firm under the alias, William Thompson, disappeared last year shortly before a complaint was filed by the government charging him with violation of the National Securities Act.

He allegedly transported "at least $5,000" in stolen money from Toledo to Washington, D.C.

Abbaticchio said Easterday and several Toledo associates perpetrated the $150,000 fraud on customers of the White company by getting paid in advance for work never completed.

The Cleveland FBI chief said Easterday would face a removal hearing in Indianapolis as soon as the federal warrant can be dispatched to that city, where he is being held.

Cleveland Solon Has Rough Time In Legislature

COLUMBUS, May 5—It was a rough day for Sen. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Cleveland).

First of all, he lost in his fight to have the Ohio senate pass a compulsory FEPC bill. A watered-down, educational measure was substituted.

Then, one of his pet bills, which would tax personal property at 11 percent of its value instead of 50 to 70 percent, was taken away from the judiciary committee, of which he is chairman, and sent to the less friendly taxation committee.

The motion to relieve the judiciary committee of the bill carried by a 23-7 vote. The switch was looked upon as another minor victory for the sponsors of the so-called "Youngstown Plan" of having increased gross receipts taxes pay for additional grants to school and local governments.

The senate also got into another wrangle on the question of licensing barber shops. Sen. Carl Sheppard (R-Akron) charged the bill was a move to set up a closed shop for barbers now practicing by limiting the number of apprentices. However, the senate voted down his motion to recommit the bill to committee, 18-13, and then passed it by the same vote.

These prices feature "Extras" that aren't!

IF you're price-conscious these days as you shop for new cars, you've probably made a big discovery.

It's important to find out what the price includes—particularly in the normal "spread" between list and delivered prices.

Take these Buick prices given here. All of them, as the panel tells you, cover such universally wanted accessories as radio and antenna, heater and defroster, windshield washers and built-in back-up lights.

These are individually itemized on your bill of sale. Not itemized, but still included in your Buick when you get it, are many things that classify as extra-cost items on many other cars.

For instance, Foamtex seat cushions are an extra value on Buick SUPERS and ROADMASTERS that cost you nothing extra. You get direction signals, rear wheel shields, a flexible steering wheel, an air cleaner, an oil filter, a clock—all included in the basic list price. On all ROADMASTERS, these prices even cover Dynaflow Drive as standard equipment, not an extra-cost item.

Included also, of course, are such Buick extra values as Fireball power, which you get nowhere else—all-coil springing, almost an exclusive—the widest rims in the industry—and that very special and desirable solid Buick feel.

So—check the "extras" when you price today's cars. Check the "deal" too, and make sure it's as fair and aboveboard as the Buick sales policy.

We're pretty sure what your conclusion will be when you see what stepped-up production is doing to deliveries. You'll decide "Buick's the buy!"—and get your order in.

FBI Locates Man Wanted In Fraud Case

CLEVELAND, May 5 — The Cleveland office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported today that William W. Easterday, notorious "confidence man" wanted in connection with Toledo fraud, has been captured in Frankfort, Ind.

Special Agent Ray J. Abbaticchio Jr., said Easterday, former Toledo White Construction Co. head, and alleged perpetrator of a $150,000 fraud, was traced to the Indiana city through exhaustive "investigative activity."

Easterday, who operated the White firm under the alias, William Thompson, disappeared last year shortly before a complaint was filed by the government charging him with violation of the National Securities Act.

He allegedly transported "at least $5,000" in stolen money from Toledo to Washington, D.C.

Abbaticchio said Easterday and several Toledo associates perpetrated the $150,000 fraud on customers of the White company by getting paid in advance for work never completed.

The Cleveland FBI chief said Easterday would face a removal hearing in Indianapolis as soon as the federal warrant can be dispatched to that city, where he is being held.

GOING TO EUROPE?

IT IS once more possible to plan a vacation in Europe with the expectation of good transportation and reasonable comfort while there.

Nearly all the space in ships and planes from mid-June to mid-September has been spoken for, but tourists who can travel before or after those dates should have no trouble getting reservations. Several countries may be entered without passport visas, and Germany can now be included in the tourist's itinerary. Gasoline restrictions are eased for those who take their own cars or rent vehicles on the spot, and hotels say they are prepared to give space and service comparable to that available before the war.

This year's tourists have Uncle Sam's blessing, too, as their dollars will help oil the gears of trade with Europe.

One aspect of the question of travel in Europe should be taken seriously. Every tourist should consider himself a good-will emissary from the United States. An attitude of pleasant co-operation, refraining from criticism of unfamiliar customs, and simple friendliness in all relationships will help to leave the right impression with our European neighbors. Not commerce alone, but friendship also should result from the re-opening of the tourist trade—if tourists will behave courteously rather than arrogantly.

USEFUL AMERICAN

FEW Americans have benefited their country more than a Danish immigrant lad, the one hundredth anniversary of whose birthday will be celebrated on May 3 by a group of friends, among them former Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. This was Jacob A. Riis, a newspaperman of Danish birth who single-handed bettered the living conditions of many thousands of New Yorkers, and through the example thus set of untold numbers in other cities.

Riis' scathing pen exposed countless horrors which an apathetic community had taken as matters of course. He exposed the contamination of New York's water, and brought about the purchase of the Croton watershed. He inspired the passage of child labor laws and the creation of school playgrounds and truant schools. He abolished police station lodging houses, and drove bakeshops out of tenement basements. The names of his biting books are battlecries in themselves, "How The Other Half Lives," "The Children of the Poor," "The Battle with the Slum."

Theodore Roosevelt, his closest friend, called him the most useful of all Americans. In remembering his career, it should not be forgotten that work like his still remains to be done, not only in New York, but almost everywhere.

One of the first things to teach children is the way home.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

When the game is over and the chips are in, the moment comes to pay up. The loser has to have the money to meet the gamble of his choice. The controversy between Herbert Hoover and Oscar Ewing is over that.

Hoover says that the money for Social Security will not be available when needed and the people will have to pay twice. Ewing, head of our Social Security setup, says that Hoover does not know what he is talking about. Few will accept Ewing's judgment on that. Too many Americans know that Hoover has devoted the last two years to the most thorough study of the organization of the American government that has been made since Alexander Hamilton.

The controversy started over a letter which Hoover wrote to Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives. Hoover wrote:

"There is an illusion about the whole federal old-age and survivors' insurance. Because the taxes on payrolls are paid into a trust fund and paid out without appropriation by Congress, there is an idea that these are neither taxes nor federal expenditures. They are both. They are just as much a burden upon our national economy as any other tax or any other government expenditure. Also, payroll taxes, however justifiable, are, like all other taxes, a burden on the standard of living of the whole nation. A considerable part of the payroll taxes paid by employers in the long run is passed to the people as a whole in prices, and a considerable part of the taxes paid by wage earners is passed on by demands for increased wages.

"An additional burden is thrust on the general taxpayer. Under the present system the federal government has used the surplus income of the trust fund (amounting to the $10 billion) for its current expenses and placed its IOU (in the shape of government bonds) in the trust fund for the money thus used. It is estimated that the benefits paid out will begin to exceed the receipts (upon the present basis of the payroll tax and benefits) in a few years. When this occurs, the government must redeem its IOUs from the trust fund. The money to redeem them must come from the general taxpayer. Even if the bonds were sold to the public, ultimately they must be redeemed by the taxpayer. As those who have already paid the payroll deductions are also taxpayers, they will, to some extent, be paying for their insurance twice over.

"I cannot agree with the economic arguments. . .to the contrary. The simple fact is that the money has been raised by a tax, and, except for benefits already paid, has been used as current expenditures by the government, and must be replaced from somewhere—the taxpayer."

Ewing got excited about this and insisted that Hoover does not understand modern social ideas and that he, therefore, does not understand what Ewing's office is doing. In a word, Ewing insists that Hoover does not understand British Fabian Socialism, which is being imitated by the Truman sociologists and economists. That is beside the point.

The question at issue is: Are Hoover's statements true or false? If true, they are not what the people assume, even if they are wonderful examples of Fabian Socialism If they are false, let the facts be produced.

Somehow white raincoats for a dark night never became popular, but they are a lot easier for a motorist to see than dark garments.

DIET AND HEALTH

New Way to Treat Scabies

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN years gone by we have heard much talk about the seven-year itch. This is a condition which produces a great deal of itching of the skin, and it was thought that seven years were required to get rid of it. Now it can be cleared up quickly with proper treatment and, therefore, it would appear that the expression, seven-year itch, should no longer be used. We now know that this disorder is due to infestation of the skin wtih a tiny parasite. The disorder is known as scabies, and itching is the most outstanding symptom.

The parasite burrows or digs its way into the skin, and the female lays its eggs in these burrows. On careful examination, these burrows may be seen as little black lines on the skin. They are most easily noted in between the fingers.

Parasites are Carried

Of course, when scratching occurs, the parasites are carried to various other parts of the skin. The skin may become infected, so that patients with scabies often have boils and many scratch marks. Furthermore, the parasites get into the bedding and clothing, and the disorder may easily be transmitted from one person to another. It is often found that all members of a family are affected.

The standby treatment for this condition still seems to be sulphur ointment. One of the difficulties with this remedy, however, is that irritation of the skin sometimes results from its use.

More recently a new preparation, known as gammexane, has been found quite helpful. This insecticide was developed in England during the war. It has been used to control chiggers, ticks, fleas, bedbugs, and lice.

Two Out of Three

When the gammexane was tested on 100 patients with scabies, all were cured after from one to three treatments. In fact, in two out of three of the patients there was no sign of activity of the condition after a single application.

The gammexane is applied in the form of a cream. It is non-toxic, non-irritating, and has a faint but not unpleasant odor.

Scabies is not a difficult disorder to diagnose and, once the diagnosis has been made, it would appear that the use of the gammexane would be worth trying from the excellent results thus far obtained from it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. M.: My nineteen-year-old daughter has swelling of the hands. There is no pain. What could cause this condition?

Answer: This condition possibly is due to some allergy or sensitivity, or to a circulatory disorder.

Your daughter is in need of a careful study by a physician to determine the exact cause of her difficulty.

Try, Stop Me

When Cleveland Amory was interviewing Beacon Hill blue-bloods for his book, "The Proper Bostonians," he met one doughty dowager who asserted that she crossed the ocean exactly 79 times. Amory pointed out, "My dear lady, that is an odd number and would have left you on the other side." The dowager gave him a condescending smile and answered, "It would—had I not been born in Paris."

Irving Bacheller, the novelist, once spent a summer in a tiny Pennsylvania hamlet. Feeling the need of exercise, he bought a horse from an honest looking gentleman who wore the long coat and broad-brimmed hat of the old-fashioned Quaker. He mounted the horse and rode off happily, but inside of a mile, the horse pulled up lame. Bacheller led him back to the Quaker. He was starting to protest when the Quaker cut him short with "No, no, thee must not ask me to take back the horse." "That was not my intention," Bacheller assured him. "All I ask is that you lend me that hat and coat until I can sell him to somebody else."

THE VALLEY OF VANISHING RIDERS

SYNOPSIS

Chip Halliday, Singin' Sam McAllister and Ute Kincade break from Deer Lodge prison and dash for the outlaw sanctuary known as "Forlorn Valley," a grim colony presided over by diabolical Seton Alessandro and boss Clark Rayburn. To dodge a posse, the fugitives separate, heading in various directions. Wounded, Chip is hidden in the school house by teacher Hope Brennan who insists he take her into The Valley with him. In a blackmail plot, Kincade presents his significant Ace of Spades card at Alessandro's bank demanding money, but his scheme fails and he and Sam are arrested. Aware that the fugitives know the secret of his dark past, Alessandro decrees that these men shall die and orders his ranch boss, Jack Ives, to stir up a mob to lynch them. Young beautiful Lia, Alessandro's ward, is in love with Ives and begs him to carry her off, but Ives fears to oppose his cat-cruel boss.

CHAPTER TEN

CHIP raised his eyebrows in applause and considered this golden girl with a growing respect. Hope had proved herself cool in the emergency of Tate Strunk's arrival last night. Afterwards she had showed a hard head in driving her bargain with him, Chip Halliday. And now she'd displayed a generalship that took everything into account. He said, "You don't really need me, you know. I suspect you could get into Forlorn Valley or anywhere else you were minded, all by your lonesome. Thanks for taking me along."

"We're not there yet," she reminded him. "And we've probably got a long wait. We might as well settle ourselves comfortably."

Hobbling the horses, they stripped the gear from them and spread the saddle blankets in the scanty shade of a lodgepole pine. From this vantage point they could keep an eye on the basin below them, but Chip, weary and weak from the night before dozed away, his head pillowed on his saddle, and at high noon was awakened by the light touch of the girl's hand upon his shoulder.

"Company coming?" he asked sleepily.

"Not yet," she said. "I thought you might be hungry. In any case, it may be a long time between meals if we do manage to hide ourselves aboard a wagon."

He said, "Do you know, I like being with you. I don't even have to think. Will you marry me?"

"I'm not interested," she said. "That surprises you greatly, I suppose. You're sure that any girl in the world would jump at the chance. But the man I marry has to have some sense of responsibility and both feet planted squarely on the ground. Chip, tell me, seriously, can you imagine a more undependable prospect than being married to you?"

He grinned broadly. "You'd feel different if I was shaved and prettied up," he said.

"Here!" she said and thrust food at him.

Munching this cold food she'd stuffed into a saddle bag before they'd left the teacherage, he studied the basin below him. No riders showed themselves around Alessandro's ranch, no smoke lifted above the tree tops, and these signs of desertion interested him. But with the food eaten, he grew sleepy again, and once more he dozed upon the blanket. Sometimes he dreamed, and his dreams were a tangle of people and places, with Singin' Sam and Ute Kincade and Tate Strunk and Hope Brennan stalking through them. And once again he was aroused by the girl's touch upon his shoulder.

"You mutter in your sleep," she said. "That's another reason I wouldn't marry you. But look!"

He saw now that the sun was veering toward the west; the afternoon was almost gone and he was surprised that he'd slept so long. But it was the objects the girl indicated that really riveted his attention. Snaking across the basin floor and skirting a flashing creek that meandered out of the north came four high-sided freight wagons in single file, six-yoke of oxen hitched to each wagon while the bullwhackers strode along, the popping of their whips reaching Chip faintly at this far distance.

"That's them, sure enough," he said. "What now?"

"We'll leave our horses here and go down on foot," she said. "Our big job will be to get aboard a wagon undetected, and we'll have to leave that to chance. If we make it, fine. If not, we can come back to our horses; even unhobbled they won't be strayed too far away.

He gave her a stiff military salute. "Yes, sir. As you say, sir," he said.

She smiled. "Come on," she urged.

The horses unhobbled and left behind, they went walking down into the basin, keeping low and maneuvering from one clump of trees to another. They moved at an angle, their object to intercept the slow-moving wagons. But as the distance narrowed, Chip began to regard Hope's plan with growing misgivings. How could they manage to get aboard a wagon without being seen by the bullwhackers?

The freighters had vanished into a grove of trees; now the wagons reappeared, but there were only three of them. No more than a quarter of a mile separated Chip and the girl from the timber that hid the missing wagon, and the two went forward at a hard run, bending low and bobbing into the leafy shelter. They could make out the fourth wagon ahead of them, the canvas top glimmering whitely through the interlacing branches where it stood unmoving and as they wormed as close as they dared, a bullwhacker came stomping back along the trail.

"Pete," the fellow demanded, "what in blazes is holding you up?"

"My front axle's been crying for grease ever since we left Tumblerock," Pete replied. "I've got to do some daubing now, or I'll never make it over the pass."

Crawling closer, Chip could see both bullwhackers, a pair of big, thick-chested men wearing the broad-brimmed hats, flannel shirts and pants tucked into high-legged boots that was the usual garb of their breed. The one who'd come back mopped his forehead with a large bandanna and said, "A hot day and a dull job, Pete. I wish we was back in town. At least there's free liquor and excitement there."

"And a lynching by the time it gets deep dark," Pete said. "It was shore getting off to a proper start, if I ever saw the sign. Did you see them two prisoners? The Kincade gent looks like he needs a hanging, they say, but McAllister seemed to stack up as a kindly old galoot."

Chip had his hand on Hope's arm, and his fingers bit deeply. He began wriggling backwards, still keeping as quiet as possible, and the girl, frowning in puzzlement, could do nothing but follow him. When they'd withdrawn to a safe distance, she whispered, "What's the matter with you? We had a perfect chance there. While he was under the wagon doing his greasing, we might have been able to slip inside!"

Chip said, "We've got to get back to the horses! And we've got to get to Tumblerock by the shortest trail!"

She said, "I don't understand—?"

"I'm not sure I do either. But Ute Kincade and Singin' Sam McAllister are in jail in Tumblerock. Didn't you hear what that bullwhacker said? And the town's fixing to lynch them sometime tonight!"

Hope said, "We made a deal. You were to take me into Forlorn Valley with you. Sheriff Busby will stop that lynching."

"Our deal still goes," he said fiercely. "But Forlorn Valley can wait. There's nothing in this world that matters much to me with Singin' Sam in danger. And I'm not depending on any badge-toter to get him out!"

All the levity had left him, and his easy-going ways were discarded as a coat is shed. He was a man possessed of one gnawing need, and one only, and a look at him was enough to know that he'd brook no interference, be swayed by no argument. They went back across the basin floor, making little effort at keeping to cover, and they toiled up the hillside to that same clump of lodgepole pine where they'd hidden the saddles and gear.

Now they had to thresh through the timber, searching for the horses they'd turned loose, and Chip was in a frenzy of impatience until he found the two, not far away, and settled a noose over their necks. When he was mounted a few minutes later, Chip looked to Hope. "Point the way to Tumblerock," he said. "The fastest way."

She nodded and headed her horse southwest, skirting the rim of the basin and coming down onto the broad floor somewhere below Alessandro's ranch. They rode at a brick gallop, but there were places where the trail forced them to a walk. It was in one of these stretches that Chip began speaking, softly and almost to himself.

"Sam McAllister worked for my father before I was born," he said. "My mother died when I was button-size, and Singin' Sam was mother, partner and teacher to me. It was him put me aboard my first cow pony. It was him untangled my twine when I learned to rope. He taught me to cuss and to chew tobacco, but he also taught me to give the other fellow an even shake. He got me into trouble time and again, but mostly it was the other way around, him following wherever I led. A lot of the gray in Iron Hat Halliday's hair comes from schemes the two of us dreamed up, yet in all the years I never found any real wrong in Singin' Sam McAllister."

Hope said, "I'm sorry. I didn't quite understand—until now."

His eyes mirrored a fierce determination. "If we get to Tumblerock too late, I'll tear down that town, stick for stick and stone for stone. Do you understand me? I'll root out every man that has a hand in the lynching, even if I have to chase them from here to Mexico!"

ONE MAN'S OPINION

A brisk black market in false teeth is reported in Britain which socialized its cavities with our credits.

Probably this will not depress Oscar Ewing who holds that every man is entitled to three sets of free teeth: two from nature and one from government.

But under our current system we don't have little men in bowler hats backing us into doorways to whisper, "I sye, guv'nr, wanna buy a hot biscupid?"

And our dentists don't have to make alley appointments after sundown with merchants of a molar mob to get supplies.

Over here you buy false teeth if you can afford them. If you can't afford them you buy television, a new car or something else you can't afford either.

And there are still quite a few persons who would rather get their milk teeth from nature than milk teeth from government.

Every once in a while some calamity howler gets up on his hind legs and claims the country is getting overpopulated, that we're crowding up in cities and pretty soon we won't have land enough to feed all the customers. He may even add that the early pioneers used up all the good opportunities in the country. But the Department of Agriculture says this is as wrong as a U-turn in a tunnel. Actually three out of five Americans live on less than 1% of the land, and almost one-third of the nation's area is forest. There's still plenty of room, and opportunities didn't end with the Forty-Niners. We're only beginning.

Red Pressure on Satellites For Collectivization Seen

Legislation Would Deprive Communists of Citizenship

WASHINGTON—State department experts are convinced that Moscow will insist upon full-scale collective farming in all the satellite countries.

The Kremlin has put on the heat for collectivization in Poland and Romania. So unpopular is the step with the peasants who make up most of the population in Russia's orbit that even the most dedicated Communists quail at the thought of confronting their countries with such a program.

Rep. Francis E. Walter

The State department believes that an absolute insistence on collective farming will bring America new allies among the mass of people of Iron Curtain countries.

● BLOW FOR REDS—The Communist party in the United States would be dealt a crippling blow if legislation sponsored by a House Democratic leader is enacted.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D), Pennsylvania, is pushing a bill to deprive Americans who join the Communist party of their citizenship

Naturalized Americans would be subject to deportation after being divested of their citizenship, while native-born Americans would become "stateless."

As "stateless" residents of the United States, they would lose many of the privileges they now take for granted, such as voting, holding public office, running for public office, obtaining a passport and, in many states, practicing as an attorney or physician.

● TREE FOR HOFFMAN—A tree, bearing the name of European Recovery Director Paul G Hoffman will be growing in Holland shortly But it very definitely will not be in Hoffman's "memory"

The matter came up when the Economic Co-operation administrator greeted 33 young Dutch farmers who are in the United States for six months to study American farm techniques first hand.

C. W C. Van Beekom, who is heading the group, suggested that a tree be planted in the land of tulips commemorating Hoffman's work. Van Beekom suggested the island of Walcheren in the Netherlands as the ideal spot for the tree

He pointed out that the island was flooded during the war as an anti-Nazi move and is now a "desert." However, he continued, funds are being raised to replant the island.

Hoffman, reaching for a five dollar bill, said he was aware of the program but added, "There is one thing that disturbs me." At this point Van Beekom protested that five dollars was too big a donation, that one dollar would be enough.

"No, I want to give you five dollars," Hoffman insisted. "But that is not what distresses me What I don't like is that you want to name it the Paul Hoffman memorial tree

"I'm not dead yet," Hoffman said, adding quietly, "not quite."

Van Beekom promised it would be named simply the Paul Hoffman tree.

Cool to Tax For Health Program

● TRUMAN TO TAKE LESS—Congressional opinion is that President Truman will get far less than he has asked in the way of national health legislation but that he will sign on the dotted line in the belief that something is better than nothing.

A good many members of both major political parties object to the payroll tax of the Truman health program. It would bring all Americans under the plan.

Leaders say privately that some compromise measure probably will be sent to the White House. It will put participation on a voluntary rather than a mandatory basis.

GOING TO EUROPE?

IT IS once more possible to plan a vacation in Europe with the expectation of good transportation and reasonable comfort while there.

Nearly all the space in ships and planes from mid-June to mid-September has been spoken for, but tourists who can travel before or after those dates should have no trouble getting reservations. Several countries may be entered without passport visas, and Germany can now be included in the tourist's itinerary. Gasoline restrictions are eased for those who take their own cars or rent vehicles on the spot, and hotels say they are prepared to give space and service comparable to that available before the war.

This year's tourists have Uncle Sam's blessing, too, as their dollars will help oil the gears of trade with Europe.

One aspect of the question of travel in Europe should be taken seriously. Every tourist should consider himself a good-will emissary from the United States. An attitude of pleasant co-operation, refraining from criticism of unfamiliar customs, and simple friendliness in all relationships will help to leave the right impression with our European neighbors. Not commerce alone, but friendship also should result from the re-opening of the tourist trade—if tourists will behave courteously rather than arrogantly.

USEFUL AMERICAN

FEW Americans have benefited their country more than a Danish immigrant lad, the one hundredth anniversary of whose birthday will be celebrated on May 3 by a group of friends, among them former Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. This was Jacob A. Riis, a newspaperman of Danish birth who single-handed bettered the living conditions of many thousands of New Yorkers, and through the example thus set of untold numbers in other cities.

Riis' scathing pen exposed countless horrors which an apathetic community had taken as matters of course. He exposed the contamination of New York's water, and brought about the purchase of the Croton watershed. He inspired the passage of child labor laws and the creation of school playgrounds and truant schools. He abolished police station lodging houses, and drove bakeshops out of tenement basements. The names of his biting books are battlecries in themselves, "How The Other Half Lives," "The Children of the Poor," "The Battle with the Slum."

Theodore Roosevelt, his closest friend, called him the most useful of all Americans. In remembering his career, it should not be forgotten that work like his still remains to be done, not only in New York, but almost everywhere.

One of the first things to teach children is the way home.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

When the game is over and the chips are in, the moment comes to pay up. The loser has to have the money to meet the gamble of his choice. The controversy between Herbert Hoover and Oscar Ewing is over that.

Hoover says that the money for Social Security will not be available when needed and the people will have to pay twice. Ewing, head of our Social Security setup, says that Hoover does not know what he is talking about. Few will accept Ewing's judgment on that. Too many Americans know that Hoover has devoted the last two years to the most thorough study of the organization of the American government that has been made since Alexander Hamilton.

The controversy started over a letter which Hoover wrote to Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives. Hoover wrote:

"There is an illusion about the whole federal old-age and survivors' insurance. Because the taxes on payrolls are paid into a trust fund and paid out without appropriation by Congress, there is an idea that these are neither taxes nor federal expenditures. They are both. They are just as much a burden upon our national economy as any other tax or any other government expenditure. Also, payroll taxes, however justifiable, are, like all other taxes, a burden on the standard of living of the whole nation. A considerable part of the payroll taxes paid by employers in the long run is passed to the people as a whole in prices, and a considerable part of the taxes paid by wage earners is passed on by demands for increased wages.

"An additional burden is thrust on the general taxpayer. Under the present system the federal government has used the surplus income of the trust fund (amounting to the $10 billion) for its current expenses and placed its IOU (in the shape of government bonds) in the trust fund for the money thus used. It is estimated that the benefits paid out will begin to exceed the receipts (upon the present basis of the payroll tax and benefits) in a few years. When this occurs, the government must redeem its IOUs from the trust fund. The money to redeem them must come from the general taxpayer. Even if the bonds were sold to the public, ultimately they must be redeemed by the taxpayer. As those who have already paid the payroll deductions are also taxpayers, they will, to some extent, be paying for their insurance twice over.

"I cannot agree with the economic arguments. . .to the contrary. The simple fact is that the money has been raised by a tax, and, except for benefits already paid, has been used as current expenditures by the government, and must be replaced from somewhere—the taxpayer."

Ewing got excited about this and insisted that Hoover does not understand modern social ideas and that he, therefore, does not understand what Ewing's office is doing. In a word, Ewing insists that Hoover does not understand British Fabian Socialism, which is being imitated by the Truman sociologists and economists. That is beside the point.

The question at issue is: Are Hoover's statements true or false? If true, they are not what the people assume, even if they are wonderful examples of Fabian Socialism If they are false, let the facts be produced.

Somehow white raincoats for a dark night never became popular, but they are a lot easier for a motorist to see than dark garments.

New Way to Treat Scabies

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN years gone by we have heard much talk about the seven-year itch. This is a condition which produces a great deal of itching of the skin, and it was thought that seven years were required to get rid of it. Now it can be cleared up quickly with proper treatment and, therefore, it would appear that the expression, seven-year itch, should no longer be used. We now know that this disorder is due to infestation of the skin wtih a tiny parasite. The disorder is known as scabies, and itching is the most outstanding symptom.

The parasite burrows or digs its way into the skin, and the female lays its eggs in these burrows. On careful examination, these burrows may be seen as little black lines on the skin. They are most easily noted in between the fingers.

Parasites are Carried

Of course, when scratching occurs, the parasites are carried to various other parts of the skin. The skin may become infected, so that patients with scabies often have boils and many scratch marks. Furthermore, the parasites get into the bedding and clothing, and the disorder may easily be transmitted from one person to another. It is often found that all members of a family are affected.

The standby treatment for this condition still seems to be sulphur ointment. One of the difficulties with this remedy, however, is that irritation of the skin sometimes results from its use.

More recently a new preparation, known as gammexane, has been found quite helpful. This insecticide was developed in England during the war. It has been used to control chiggers, ticks, fleas, bedbugs, and lice.

Two Out of Three

When the gammexane was tested on 100 patients with scabies, all were cured after from one to three treatments. In fact, in two out of three of the patients there was no sign of activity of the condition after a single application.

The gammexane is applied in the form of a cream. It is non-toxic, non-irritating, and has a faint but not unpleasant odor.

Scabies is not a difficult disorder to diagnose and, once the diagnosis has been made, it would appear that the use of the gammexane would be worth trying from the excellent results thus far obtained from it.

THE VALLEY OF VANISHING RIDERS

by NORMAN A. FOX

SYNOPSIS

Chip Halliday, Singin' Sam McAllister and Ute Kincade break from Deer Lodge prison and dash for the outlaw sanctuary known as "Forlorn Valley," a grim colony presided over by diabolical Seton Alessandro and boss Clark Rayburn. To dodge a posse, the fugitives separate, heading in various directions. Wounded, Chip is hidden in the school house by teacher Hope Brennan who insists he take her into The Valley with him. In a blackmail plot, Kincade presents his significant Ace of Spades card at Alessandro's bank demanding money, but his scheme fails and he and Sam are arrested. Aware that the fugitives know the secret of his dark past, Alessandro decrees that these men shall die and orders his ranch boss, Jack Ives, to stir up a mob to lynch them. Young beautiful Lia, Alessandro's ward, is in love with Ives and begs him to carry her off, but Ives fears to oppose his cat-cruel boss.

CHAPTER TEN

CHIP raised his eyebrows in applause and considered this golden girl with a growing respect. Hope had proved herself cool in the emergency of Tate Strunk's arrival last night. Afterwards she had showed a hard head in driving her bargain with him, Chip Halliday. And now she'd displayed a generalship that took everything into account. He gave her a stiff military salute. "Yes, sir. As you say, sir," he said.

She smiled. "Come on," she urged.

The horses unhobbled and left behind, they went walking down into the basin, keeping low and maneuvering from one clump of trees to another. They moved at an angle, their object to intercept the slow-moving wagons. But as the distance narrowed, Chip began to regard Hope's plan with growing misgivings. How could they manage to get aboard a wagon without being seen by the bullwhackers?

The one who'd come back mopped his forehead with a large bandanna and said, "A hot day and a dull job, Pete. I wish we was back in town. At least there's free liquor and excitement there."

"And a lynching by the time it gets deep dark," Pete said. "It was shore getting off to a proper start, if I ever saw the sign. Did you see them two prisoners? The Kincade gent looks like he needs a hanging, they say, but McAllister seemed to stack up as a kindly old galoot."

Chip had his hand on Hope's arm, and his fingers bit deeply. He began wriggling backwards, still keeping as quiet as possible, and the girl, frowning in puzzlement, could do nothing but follow him. When they'd withdrawn to a safe distance, she whispered, "What's the matter with you? We had a perfect chance there. While he was under the wagon doing his greasing, we might have been able to slip inside!"

Chip said, "We've got to get back to the horses! And we've got to get to Tumblerock by the shortest trail!"

She said, "I don't understand—?"

"I'm not sure I do either. But Ute Kincade and Singin' Sam McAllister are in jail in Tumblerock. Didn't you hear what that bullwhacker said? And the town's fixing to lynch them sometime tonight!"

Hope said, "We made a deal. You were to take me into Forlorn Valley with you. Sheriff Busby will stop that lynching."

"Our deal still goes," he said fiercely. "But Forlorn Valley can wait. There's nothing in this world that matters much to me with Singin' Sam in danger. And I'm not depending on any badge-toter to get him out!"

All the levity had left him, all his easy-going ways were discarded as a coat is shed. He was a man possessed of one gnawing need, and one only, and a look at him was enough to know that he'd brook no interference, be swayed by no argument. They went back across the basin floor, making little effort at keeping to cover, and they toiled up the hillside to that same clump of lodgepole pine where they'd hidden the saddles and gear.

Now they had to thresh through the timber, searching for the horses they'd turned loose, and Chip was in a frenzy of impatience until he found the two, not far away, and settled a noose over their necks. When he was mounted a few minutes later, Chip looked to Hope. "Point the way to Tumblerock," he said. "The fastest way."

She nodded and headed her horse southwest, skirting the rim of the basin and coming down onto the broad floor somewhere below Alessandro's ranch. They rode at a brick gallop, but there were places where the trail forced them to a walk. It was in one of these stretches that Chip began speaking, softly and almost to himself.

"Sam McAllister worked for my father before I was born," he said. "My mother died when I was button-size, and Singin' Sam was mother, partner and teacher to me. It was him put me aboard my first cow pony. It was him untangled my twine when I learned to rope. He taught me to cuss and to chew tobacco, but he also taught me to give the other fellow an even shake. He got me into trouble time and again, but mostly it was the other way around, him following wherever I led. A lot of the gray in Iron Hat Halliday's hair comes from schemes the two of us dreamed up, yet in all the years I never found any real wrong in Singin' Sam McAllister."

Hope said, "I'm sorry. I didn't quite understand—until now."

His eyes mirrored a fierce determination. "If we get to Tumblerock too late, I'll tear down that town, stick for stick and stone for stone. Do you understand me? I'll root out every man that has a hand in the lynching, even if I have to chase them from here to Mexico!"

ONE MAN'S OPINION

A brisk black market in false teeth is reported in Britain which socialized its cavities with our credits.

Probably this will not depress Oscar Ewing who holds that every man is entitled to three sets of free teeth: two from nature and one from government.

But under our current system we don't have little men in bowler hats backing us into doorways to whisper, "I sye, guv'nr, wanna buy a hot biscupid?"

And our dentists don't have to make alley appointments after sundown with merchants of a molar mob to get supplies.

Over here you buy false teeth if you can afford them. If you can't afford them you buy television, a new car or something else you can't afford either.

And there are still quite a few persons who would rather get their milk teeth from nature than milk teeth from government.

Every once in a while some calamity howler gets up on his hind legs and claims the country is getting overpopulated, that we're crowding up in cities and pretty soon we won't have land enough to feed all the customers. He may even add that the early pioneers used up all the good opportunities in the country. But the Department of Agriculture says this is as wrong as a U-turn in a tunnel. Actually three out of five Americans live on less than 1% of the land, and almost one-third of the nation's area is forest. There's still plenty of room, and opportunities didn't end with the Forty-Niners. We're only beginning.

Red Pressure on Satellites For Collectivization Seen

Legislation Would Deprive Communists of Citizenship

WASHINGTON—State department experts are convinced that Moscow will insist upon full-scale collective farming in all the satellite countries.

The Kremlin has put on the heat for collectivization in Poland and Romania. So unpopular is the step with the peasants who make up most of the population in Russia's orbit that even the most dedicated Communists quail at the thought of confronting their countries with such a program.

Rep. Francis E. Walter

The State department believes that an absolute insistence on collective farming will bring America new allies among the mass of people of Iron Curtain countries.

● BLOW FOR REDS—The Communist party in the United States would be dealt a crippling blow if legislation sponsored by a House Democratic leader is enacted.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D), Pennsylvania, is pushing a bill to deprive Americans who join the Communist party of their citizenship

Naturalized Americans would be subject to deportation after being divested of their citizenship, while native-born Americans would become "stateless."

As "stateless" residents of the United States, they would lose many of the privileges they now take for granted, such as voting, holding public office, running for public office, obtaining a passport and, in many states, practicing as an attorney or physician.

● TREE FOR HOFFMAN—A tree, bearing the name of European Recovery Director Paul G Hoffman will be growing in Holland shortly But it very definitely will not be in Hoffman's "memory"

The matter came up when the Economic Co-operation administrator greeted 33 young Dutch farmers who are in the United States for six months to study American farm techniques first hand.

C. W. C. Van Beekom, who is heading the group, suggested that a tree be planted in the land of tulips commemorating Hoffman's work. Van Beekom suggested the island of Walcheren in the Netherlands as the ideal spot for the tree

He pointed out that the island was flooded during the war as an anti-Nazi move and is now a "desert." However, he continued, funds are being raised to replant the island.

Hoffman, reaching for a five dollar bill, said he was aware of the program but added, "There is one thing that disturbs me." At this point Van Beekom protested that five dollars was too big a donation, that one dollar would be enough.

"No, I want to give you five dollars," Hoffman insisted. "But that is not what distresses me What I don't like is that you want to name it the Paul Hoffman memorial tree

"I'm not dead yet," Hoffman said, adding quietly, "not quite."

Van Beekom promised it would be named simply the Paul Hoffman tree.

Cool to Tax For Health Program

● TRUMAN TO TAKE LESS—Congressional opinion is that President Truman will get far less than he has asked in the way of national health legislation but that he will sign on the dotted line in the belief that something is better than nothing.

A good many members of both major political parties object to the payroll tax of the Truman health program. It would bring all Americans under the plan.

Leaders say privately that some compromise measure probably will be sent to the White House. It will put participation on a voluntary rather than a mandatory basis.

Mrs. Arthur J. Johnson Relates Account Of Her Native England

Westminster Class Sponsors Event

Mrs. Arthur J. Johnson, Circleville resident, who came here as a bride from her native England more than three years ago, spoke before Westminster Bible Class of the Presbyterian church on "English Life."

Mrs. Johnson was heard at the annual dinner sponsored by the class in observance of Mother's Day. The event was staged in social rooms of the church. Invocation was delivered by the Rev. Donald E. Mitchell, pastor of the church.

The welcoming address was given by Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, the response by Miss Jean Howell. Piano arrangement of "Country Garden" was played by Mrs. Theodore L. Huston. Mrs. Dick Robinson sang "That Wonderful Mother Of Mine." Benediction was pronounced by Mrs. C. H. Niles.

Mrs. Johnson held the interest of her listeners by telling of her native land and comparing its customs with that of this country.

According to Mrs. Johnson, "one of the most notable differences between England and America is the pace we set to accomplish every day duties with speed being the predominating factors.

"In England, people work hard but the majority relax in the evening and over weekends."

She added, "there are fewer pleasure cars in England where driving also was at a slower speed due to narrow roads and streets there."

Mrs. Johnson commented "there is a sense of peace and tranquility about England's countryside as though it had grown mellow with time". She added the grass is green the year 'round in England where the temperature ranges between 30 and 70 degrees. She related the Englishman's custom of eating and manners of food preparations. She spoke of the Royal family, touched on England's politics and the schools and institutions of learning there. She also told of travel in England, where trains are arranged for first, second and third class passengers, commenting "America is much nicer—where no class distinction is made and people are not so reserved."

Her listeners were told that the average English home has no central heating system. Mrs. Johnson said "they heat by means of grates in every room—which have to be cleaned at least three times a year." Also she said "there are very few refrigerators in England which necessitates shopping more frequently for housewives. Neither are there washing machines, window screens, very few telephones and the radio programs are licensed."

She spoke of the gardens, cathedrals, parks and historical background of England in concluding her informative discussion.

Mother's Day Founder Fought Long And Hard

Mother's Day will be celebrated for the first time this year without the active blessing of its founder, Miss Anna M. Jarvis of Philadelphia.

Miss Jarvis, who almost single-handed created the nation's most sentimental holiday 42 years ago, died last November in a Pennsylvania sanatorium. She was 84, weak with the infirmities of age and almost forgotten by the public.

Anna Jarvis grew up in Grafton, W. Va., where her mother taught Sunday School in St. Andrews Methodist church. Each year Mrs. Jarvis conducted a celebration honoring the mothers of her Sunday School pupils.

In 1905, when Anna Jarvis was 41, her mother died. Anna spent the rest of her life in a great crusade to establish the second Sunday in May as a memorial to her own mother and to mothers all over the nation.

* * *

SHE ARRANGED the country's first Mother's Day service in May, 1907. Held in St. Andrews Church, it was dedicated to Mrs. Jarvis and all the mothers of Taylor County.

The next year, Anna Jarvis persuaded Philadelphia to proclaim the first citywide Mother's Day. At her urging, West Virginia made Mother's Day a statewide holiday in 1912, and Pennsylvania followed suit the next year.

With single-minded tenacity, Anna Jarvis made innumerable speeches before men's and women's clubs and meetings of all kinds. She carried on extensive correspondence with governors, statesmen, clergymen, and editors.

Public response was enthusiastic. Congratulatory letters piled so high that she purchased an adjoining house for storage purposes.

In 1914, Anna Jarvis' persuasive pen won over President Wilson himself. He signed a joint congressional resolution lauding the American mother as "the greatest source of the country's strength and inspiration."

It established Mother's Day permanently and authorized federal display of the flag "as a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

In the succeeding years, Miss Jarvis spent every penny of the moderate fortune left by her mother in establishing Mother's Day as a deep-rooted American tradition. During these years, too, she cared for her younger sister, Elsie, blind since birth.

* * *

THE CARNATION was suggested as official Mother's Day flower by Anna Jarvis because it had been her mother's favorite. Gradually the custom developed of wearing red carnations to honor living mothers, and white boutonnieres for deceased mothers.

In 1943, a small group of her friends and admirers was shocked to discover that Anna Jarvis was penniless, ill, and nearly blind. They immediately placed her in Marshall Square Sanatorium in West Chester, Pa., where she was comfortably cared for during her declining years.

Devoted sons and daughters will be honoring more than their own mothers when they shower them with gifts and affectionate Mother's Day greeting cards Sunday.

They will be paying tribute to the idealism and perseverance of Anna Jarvis, who gave the nation's respect for mothers its first tangible expression—Mother's Day.

Probing Cops Are Under Probe

CLEVELAND, May 5 — Two Cleveland patrolmen, who were assigned to the job of "investigating" Alex Birns, were being investigated today.

Assistant Safety Director Alvin J Sutton, who had ordered Patrolmen Arthur Howle and Peter Becker to "shadow" Birns, caught the two yesterday not shadowing but "chauffeuring" the oft-arrested Birns away from a baseball game at the stadium.

The result: Birns is under lock and key at Central Police Station and the two patrolmen face the threat of being cited on departmental charges.

Fireworks Ban Seen Possible

CLEVELAND, May 5 — The Cleveland Indians may discontinue fireworks at night baseball games this season if the city insists on banning noise-making aerial bombs.

That was the warning given last night by Rudie Schaffer, business manager of the ball club.

Schaffer's warning followed approval by the city council's safety committee of a resolution giving permission for the use of visual fireworks, but prohibiting aerial and ground bombs.

The average age of the United States presidents is just a little over 51 years.

'Bawling' Cow Is Puzzler To Dairy Experts

COLUMBUS, May 5 — Ohio dairy specialists were puzzled today with a report of a "bawling" cow.

While the extraction of cows from silos, haylofts and wells proved comparatively simple, dairymen are stymied with the psychological rather than the physical condition of a cow.

Ohio State university agriculturalists received the following letter:

"Please write and tell me what to do with a d—— cow that has all the grass she can eat, and all the water she wants to drink, and is bred, but just stands and bawls and bawls till she just about drives you nuts. She doesn't have a thing to bawl about that I can see."

To date, no solutions have been advanced.

Cop-Killer Faces Life Term In Fremont Slaying

FREMONT, May 5—Arthur F. Benner Jr., 20, of Detroit, was held by Fremont police today, pending his removal to Ohio penitentiary, where he will serve a life sentence for the slaying of a Fremont policeman.

A jury of eight men and four women found the youth guilty of first-degree murder last night after nine hours of deliberation in Sandusky County common pleas court. The jury's recommendation of mercy made a life sentence mandatory.

Benner was charged with crushing Patrolman George Biggs, 24, between a stolen car, which Benner was driving, and a truck. Biggs had jumped on the running board of Benner's car in an effort to halt the stolen auto.

The prosecution claimed Benner deliberately brushed against the truck in an effort to dislodge Biggs. The defendant, however, claimed that a companion, Arthur Shacklett, who later was shot to death by police, was the driver of the car.

No animal in the world of equal size is more powerful than the American black bear.

Stray Bullets Injure Man, 22

CLEVELAND, May 5 — Clarence Lewis, 22, had two teeth knocked out and suffered jaw injuries here last night when he was hit by one of a dozen shots fired at ranodm by a 26-year-old man with a repeater rifle.

The "marksman" was cornered by three patrolmen after the shooting and forced to drop his gun after the patrolmen cocked their own weapons.

Police said that the man walked down the street firing shots in all directions. Three of his shots crashed through a bathroom window in the Lewis home before others were fired into the side of the house, one of which pierced the wall and struck Lewis.

County TB Death Rate Is Detailed

Low Rank Given In State List

Pickaway County ranks near the bottom of the list of Ohio counties in number of deaths due to tuberculosis.

According to statistics provided by the Ohio department of health, only three countians died here in 1948 because of infection of TB.

The statistics rank Pickaway County 25th from the bottom of the list in ratio of TB deaths per 100,000 population, a lesser ratio than shown in any of the surrounding counties.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, points out that the rate was extremely low during last year, and, so far, there have been no deaths from TB reported this year.

The county ranks near the middle of the list in the percentage of TB deaths not known as cases prior to death, however. The listing was made since the county had one such death in 1948, placing it in the 33.3 percentage ratio per 100,000 population.

* * *

THE COUNTY ranks in the upper half of the state in the number of new reinfection cases reported, however. According to the figures the county has a case-death ratio per 100,000 population of 4.33, while 13 reinfections were reported last year.

Blackburn says he is proud of the record shown in the report, and states the figures have been whittled down here every year since he has held the health post.

Jan. 14, 1943—683 pounds. April 8, 1949—468 pounds.

EDWARD (MUSH) BAUER, mountainous Campbellsport, Wis., hotel man, gets a complete new wardrobe (right) from J. Oscar Goranson, Fond du Lac tailor. He needs it, because he has shrunk to a mere 468 pounds. That's 300 pounds less than he weighed when he moved into St. Agnes hospital 12 weeks ago. Mush always has been a big boy, but he figured 768 pounds was too much. (International)

Bendix Dispute Parley Continues

SOUTH BEND, May 5—Negotiations to end the 16-day-old Bendix Aviation Corp., strike here recessed early today and federal mediators indicated some progress had been made during 13 hours of continuous talks.

Representatives of Local 9, CIO-United Auto Workers, and of the firm were scheduled to reconvene with mediators later today.

Mediators declared as the talks came to a temporary halt early today:

"Again we have recessed—not adjourned—to give the parties a chance to get some rest. At this time, there is not too much optimism."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mulches Good Weed Control

Agent Cites Use To Hold Moisture

One way to control weeds and retain moisture in the garden during growing season is by the application of a mulch, according to Larry Best, Pickaway County extension agent.

"Materials commonly available for mulching include straw, shreded corn fodder chopped corn cobs and damaged hay. When properly applied, these mulches will smother weeds.

"If thinly applied, however, mulches will not control their growth, nor will inadequate amounts of mulching materials prevent the evaporation of moisture," Best said.

Mulches should be applied after the warm-season crops are well established. This is usually sometime during June. Partially decomposed mulching materials are applied from two to four inches deep, and include weathered sawdust, peat, compost and rotted manure, according to the county agent.

* * *

SOME MULCHES require nitrogen for decay and when spread on the garden will compete with the plants for the available nitrogen in the soil.

"In order to assure adequate amounts of nitrogen for the decomposition of these materials, it is necessary to apply two to three pounds per 100 square feet of the usual 4-12-8 or 5-10-10 fertilizer or one-half pound per 100 square feet of nitrate of soda, ammonium sulphate or ammonium nitrate," Best advises.

Clover and alfalfa chaff contain enough nitrogen for decay and additional applications of fertilizer are not necessary when they are used for mulching, he added. Loose, undecomposed mulches should be applied six to eight inches deep.

Rabies Shots Are Urged Here For All Pets

A suggestion that Pickaway Countians have their pets treated for rabies has been made by Ralph Wallace, Pickaway County Humane Society officer.

He said the treatment would serve to protect not only the dogs, but humans as well.

"One treatment is all that is required to make the animals immune, and the effects last for a year," he explained.

The suggestion was prompted by numerous reports of rabies cases throughout the county, he added. The persons now are receiving anti-rabies treatments.

Wallace also suggested that dog owners attach the metal plate they receive when buying a license to the dog's collar. It would serve to trace owners when stray pets are picked up.

The metal plates are drilled at each end, and all the dog owner has to do is to fasten it to the leather collar with rivets, he said.

Coal Cars Upset Near Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 5—Eleven coal cars of a New York Central freight train were derailed early today in suburban Euclid.

New York Central police officials said that "about seven or eight" of the cars overturned. They added, however, that no one was injured.

Cause of the derailment is undetermined, but NYC police are investigating.

Volume Drops, Prices Steady In Stock Sale

Volume continued to drop during this week's Pickaway County Livestock Association auctions Wednesday, although there was little change in prices.

Receipts dropped 80 head when only 769 were auctioned as compared with 849 sold the week before.

Cattle receipts fell to 148 head, 45 head less than last week's sale of 193.

Hog receipts remained the same this week, with 250 being sold.

Calf receipts dropped from 106 for last week to 71 marketed Wednesday.

Sheep and lamb receipts were marked "not enough on sale to make a market."

A complete report of this week's transactions follows:

Mulches Good Weed Control

Agent Cites Use To Hold Moisture

One way to control weeds and retain moisture in the garden during growing season is by the application of a mulch, according to Larry Best, Pickaway County extension agent.

"Materials commonly available for mulching include straw, shreded corn fodder chopped corn cobs and damaged hay. When properly applied, these mulches will smother weeds.

"If thinly applied, however, mulches will not control their growth, nor will inadequate amounts of mulching materials prevent the evaporation of moisture," Best said.

Mulches should be applied after the warm-season crops are well established. This is usually sometime during June. Partially decomposed mulching materials are applied from two to four inches deep, and include weathered sawdust, peat, compost and rotted manure, according to the county agent.

* * *

SOME MULCHES require nitrogen for decay and when spread on the garden will compete with the plants for the available nitrogen in the soil.

"In order to assure adequate amounts of nitrogen for the decomposition of these materials, it is necessary to apply two to three pounds per 100 square feet of the usual 4-12-8 or 5-10-10 fertilizer or one-half pound per 100 square feet of nitrate of soda, ammonium sulphate or ammonium nitrate," Best advises.

Clover and alfalfa chaff contain enough nitrogen for decay and additional applications of fertilizer are not necessary when they are used for mulching, he added. Loose, undecomposed mulches should be applied six to eight inches deep.

Rabies Shots Are Urged Here For All Pets

A suggestion that Pickaway Countians have their pets treated for rabies has been made by Ralph Wallace, Pickaway County Humane Society officer.

He said the treatment would serve to protect not only the dogs, but humans as well.

"One treatment is all that is required to make the animals immune, and the effects last for a year," he explained.

The suggestion was prompted by numerous reports of rabies cases throughout the county, he added. The persons now are receiving anti-rabies treatments.

Wallace also suggested that dog owners attach the metal plate they receive when buying a license to the dog's collar. It would serve to trace owners when stray pets are picked up.

The metal plates are drilled at each end, and all the dog owner has to do is to fasten it to the leather collar with rivets, he said.

Coal Cars Upset Near Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 5—Eleven coal cars of a New York Central freight train were derailed early today in suburban Euclid.

New York Central police officials said that "about seven or eight" of the cars overturned. They added, however, that no one was injured.

Cause of the derailment is undetermined, but NYC police are investigating.

Volume Drops, Prices Steady In Stock Sale

Volume continued to drop during this week's Pickaway County Livestock Association auctions Wednesday, although there was little change in prices.

Receipts dropped 80 head when only 769 were auctioned as compared with 849 sold the week before.

Cattle receipts fell to 148 head, 45 head less than last week's sale of 193.

Hog receipts remained the same this week, with 250 being sold.

Calf receipts dropped from 106 for last week to 71 marketed Wednesday.

Sheep and lamb receipts were marked "not enough on sale to make a market."

Bavarians Eye Chances Of New King

German Sentiment Claimed Growing

MUNICH, May 5—The possibility of a Bavarian king arising fully-crowned from the shambles of a postwar Germany came to international attention with a mounting tide of monarchical sentiment in Munich and elsewhere.

A royal restoration in a world that for years has been swinging toward the left is somewhat difficult to visualize.

But Bavaria is a special case. The population is 70 percent Catholic, deeply conservative, extremely nationalistic and uniformly anti-Communist.

Adolf Hitler shrewdly chose Munich and Nuernberg as the seats of his Nazi movement. The big industrialists, fearful of Communism and even of Socialism, backed him to the hilt and used his brownshirt troops as strike-breakers.

* * *

FROM THIS beginning, Nazism mushroomed to engulf all Germany and later to plunge the world into war.

Monarchist leaders have set May 18 as the date for a mass demonstration throughout Bavaria in favor of Crown Prince Rupprecht, the 80-year-old Wittelsbach who commanded an army for Kaiser Wilhelm in World War I and has carried on the traditions of his house through all the changing times.

The monarchist movement has been spurred into action by two factors.

One is the almost universal fear of Communism in Bavaria.

The other is a dislike of the type of government provided for in the Bonn constitution which is sponsored by the Western Allies.

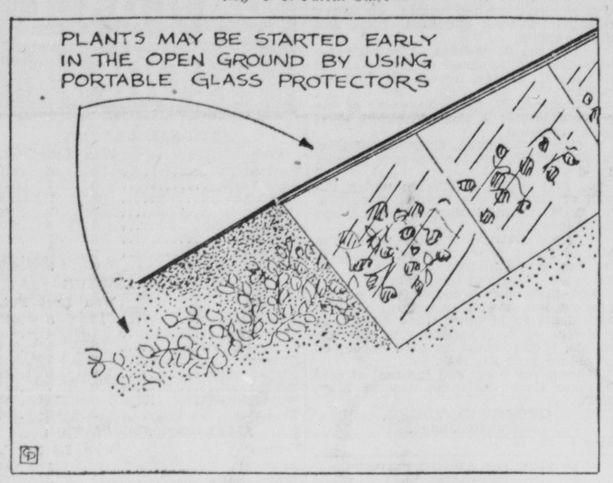
Bavarians fear that in either case they would be swallowed up, their "national entitly" lost and their traditions buried.

It is doubtful whether the occupational statutes provide for action in any contingency such as a serious move to restore the Bavarian monarchy. Military authorities may find themselves in a dilemma. They can hardly oppose anything that is so deeply entrenched against Communism as a Bavarian monarchy. But they probably would far rather have Rupprecht remain in retirement and leave his crown in the family safe.

Norrland is the northernmost and largest, but least populous of the three historical divisions of Sweden. The other two are Svealand and Gotaland.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg U S Patent Office



Good Seeds Needed For Good Seedlings

By DEAN HALLIDAY

BE SURE seeds are worth planting, especially if you are trying for an early start with your vegetables and don't want to face replanting. Seeds held over from last year should be tested for viability or ability to germinate.

Testing can be done at home by the following method. Fill a deep plate with sand which has been thoroughly moistened. Then place square pieces of thick blotting paper over the sand, pushing it into the sand on the sides so that it will take up moisture. Moisten the blotting paper and place the seeds on it.

It is best to count out 100 seeds of each kind, for then it becomes easy to figure the percentage of germination. The sand must be kept moist and the plate with its contents covered with another plate. Keep this simple testing apparatus in a warm place with a minimum temperature of 70 degrees. It will be easy to judge by the number that germinate whether the seeds are worth planting.

Seeds which germinate poorly must be planted more thickly—if at all—than those which germinate well. The better the germination, the thinner the sowing, within reason.

It is common practice to start plants in the house, and this is necessary with long season plants like tomatoes and peppers which need to be planted very early. Most home gardeners, however, will find it wise to buy started plants of such kinds.

On the whole, the average gardener will make just as rapid progress by sowing his vegetable seeds in the open ground as by starting them indoors, provided some form of protection is used while the weather remains cold.

The glass device illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph is really a miniature, portable frame, and makes possible the starting of seeds much earlier outdoors.

Teeth Extracted From Proposed Ohio FEPC Bill

COLUMBUS, May 5—An educational version of a fair employment practices bill, so watered-down that it was disowned by its senate sponsor, went back to an uncertain fate in the house today following its 30-1 passage by the Ohio senate.

The bill lacks all of the teeth contained in the compulsory version approved March 23 by a 70-61 vote of the house, so the question remains if the house will concur in the senate amendments.

However, a similar amendment offered in the house then lost by the slimmest of margin—67-66—so the house may go along with the educational bill.

The lone vote against the substituted bill was cast by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Cleveland) who attempted unsuccessfully to steer the compulsory house version to passage. When the bill was so amended that it constituted an entirely different measure, Metzenbaum angrily urged his colleagues to defeat it. He stated:

"Speaking for myself, I intend to vote against the measure, because I'm convinced that the two pieces of paper which now constitute the FEPC bill constitute less than nothing.

* * *

"WE HAVE KILLED the bill (by adopting the amendment). I prefer to kill it in its entirety and not attempt to kid the people into believing we have passed an FEPC bill and kept our party platform pledges.

"We have not kept them. We have broken them."

Metzenbaum's blast followed the adoption of a substitute bill offered by Sen. Edwin Sawicki (D-Cleveland) which would set up a three-member commission to investigate discrimination complaints and attempt to reach agreement between the complainant and the employer. The commission, whose members would receive $6,000 a year, would report yearly to the governor and the legislature on its actions and recommendations.

The bill contains no definition of what constitutes an unfair employment practice.

The present value of Stradivarious violins, made by the famous 17th century Italian violin maker, ranges from $5,000 to $100,000.

Bavarians Eye Chances Of New King

German Sentiment Claimed Growing

MUNICH, May 5—The possibility of a Bavarian king arising fully-crowned from the shambles of a postwar Germany came to international attention with a mounting tide of monarchical sentiment in Munich and elsewhere.

A royal restoration in a world that for years has been swinging toward the left is somewhat difficult to visualize.

But Bavaria is a special case. The population is 70 percent Catholic, deeply conservative, extremely nationalistic and uniformly anti-Communist.

Adolf Hitler shrewdly chose Munich and Nuernberg as the seats of his Nazi movement. The big industrialists, fearful of Communism and even of Socialism, backed him to the hilt and used his brownshirt troops as strike-breakers.

• • •

FROM THIS beginning, Nazism mushroomed to engulf all Germany and later to plunge the world into war.

Monarchist leaders have set May 18 as the date for a mass demonstration throughout Bavaria in favor of Crown Prince Rupprecht, the 80-year-old Wittelsbach who commanded an army for Kaiser Wilhelm in World War I and has carried on the traditions of his house through all the changing times.

The monarchist movement has been spurred into action by two factors.

One is the almost universal fear of Communism in Bavaria.

The other is a dislike of the type of government provided for in the Bonn constitution which is sponsored by the Western Allies.

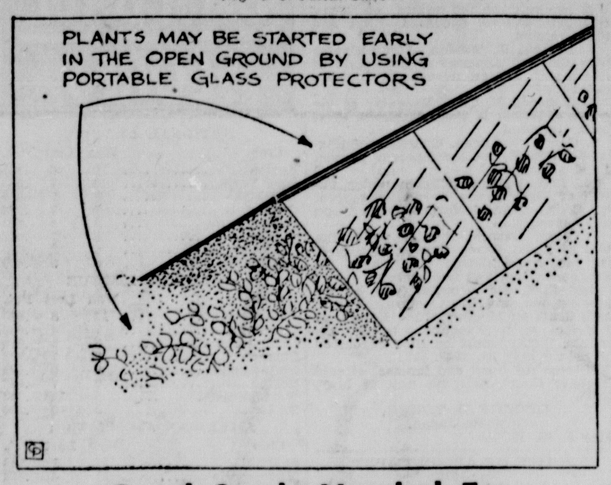
Bavarians fear that in either case they would be swallowed up, their "national entitly" lost and their traditions buried.

It is doubtful whether the occupational statutes provide for action in any contingency such as a serious move to restore the Bavarian monarchy. Military authorities may find themselves in a dilemma. They can hardly oppose anything that is so deeply entrenched against Communism as a Bavarian monarchy. But they probably would far rather have Rupprecht remain in retirement and leave his crown in the family safe.

Norrland is the northernmost and largest, but least populous of the three historical divisions of Sweden. The other two are Svealand and Gotaland.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg U S Patent Office



Good Seeds Needed For Good Seedlings

By DEAN HALLIDAY

BE SURE seeds are worth planting, especially if you are trying for an early start with your vegetables and don't want to face replanting. Seeds held over from last year should be tested for viability or ability to germinate.

Testing can be done at home by the following method. Fill a deep plate with sand which has been thoroughly moistened. Then place square pieces of thick blotting paper over the sand, pushing it into the sand on the sides so that it will take up moisture. Moisten the blotting paper and place the seeds on it.

It is best to count out 100 seeds of each kind, for then it becomes easy to figure the percentage of germination. The sand must be kept moist and the plate with its contents covered with another plate. Keep this simple testing apparatus in a warm place with a minimum temperature of 70 degrees. It will be easy to judge by the number that germinate whether the seeds are worth planting.

Seeds which germinate poorly must be planted more thickly—if at all—than those which germinate well. The better the germination, the thinner the sowing, within reason.

It is common practice to start plants in the house, and this is necessary with long season plants like tomatoes and peppers which need to be planted very early. Most home gardeners, however, will find it wise to buy started plants of such kinds.

On the whole, the average gardener will make just as rapid progress by sowing his vegetable seeds in the open ground as by starting them indoors, provided some form of protection is used while the weather remains cold.

The glass device illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph is really a miniature, portable frame, and makes possible the starting of seeds much earlier outdoors.

Teeth Extracted From Proposed Ohio FEPC Bill

COLUMBUS, May 5—An educational version of a fair employment practices bill, so watered-down that it was disowned by its senate sponsor, went back to an uncertain fate in the house today following its 30-1 passage by the Ohio senate.

The bill lacks all of the teeth contained in the compulsory version approved March 23 by a 70-61 vote of the house, so the question remains if the house will concur in the senate amendments.

However, a similar amendment offered in the house then lost by the slimmest of margin—67-66—so the house may go along with the educational bill.

The lone vote against the substituted bill was cast by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Cleveland) who attempted unsuccessfully to steer the compulsory house version to passage. When the bill was so amended that it constituted an entirely different measure, Metzenbaum angrily urged his colleagues to defeat it. He stated:

"Speaking for myself, I intend to vote against the measure, because I'm convinced that the two pieces of paper which now constitute the FEPC bill constitute less than nothing.

• • •

"WE HAVE KILLED the bill (by adopting the amendment). I prefer to kill it in its entirety and not attempt to kid the people into believing we have passed an FEPC bill and kept our party platform pledges.

"We have not kept them. We have broken them."

Metzenbaum's blast followed the adoption of a substitute bill offered by Sen. Edwin Sawicki (D-Cleveland) which would set up a three-member commission to investigate discrimination complaints and attempt to reach agreement between the complainant and the employer. The commission, whose members would receive $6,000 a year, would report yearly to the governor and the legislature on its actions and recommendations.

The bill contains no definition of what constitutes an unfair employment practice.

The present value of Stradivarious violins, made by the famous 17th century Italian violin maker, ranges from $5,000 to $100,000.

LOSES 76 POUNDS FEELS YOUNGER
Oak Hill Lady Praises Reducer

"Before taking Rennel I could hardly get around to do my work," writes Mrs. E. Hall, R. F. D. 3, Box 25, Oak Hill, Ohio. "Since taking Rennel I have lost 76 pounds and feel like I am 10 years younger. Now I take pride in working in my garden, and cut all my own grass. Rennel is a wonderful product."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get the genuine Rennel.

Chillicothe Bypass Irks Local Coach

Circleville high school's long anticipated return baseball game against Chillicothe was called off Thursday.

Tiger Coach John Daugherty said Thursday he had been notified that Chillicothe was playing in a tournament on Friday and would be unable to come up.

Daugherty, as eager for the return match as his players, then asked Chillicothe why it couldn't play the game Thursday afternoon.

The Tiger coach said Chillicothe's answer was that the school was having a junior baseball game Thursday and would be unable to make the trip.

Daugherty replied that he thought that was a "silly excuse" and would claim the game by forfeit, since it had been contracted earlier.

The CHS coach also said he claimed the first game in which the two teams met this season.

• • •

IN THAT GAME the locals led by three or four runs going into the last half of the 11th inning. The umpire called the game because of darkness.

"I claim that game because it should have been called before Chillicothe came to bat if it were to have been called at all," said Daugherty. "As it was, the 11th inning was all but over when the towel was tossed in."

Daugherty placed his problem before the Circleville Athletic Association Thursday morning.

Donkey Softball Game Is Booked In Park Here

Two teams and 10 donkeys are to pit their skills against each other in a softball game in Ted Lewis Park Monday evening.

A "select" American Legion aggregation has challenged a Booster Club squad for the game and for the "Lady Godiva" race during intermission.

The program is sponsored by the Legion, which plans to use the funds for equipping this year's Legion junior baseball team.

Members of the challenging Legion squad are George Helwagen, Robert Shadley, James Shea, Dick Shaw, John Anderson, Jim Pickel, Bob Lovenshimer, George Montgomery and David Glick.

Booster Clubbers are Glenn Pearce, Paul Seymour, Blenn Stevenson, Junior Anderson, Robert Smith, Bob Moon, Jim Callihan, Jack Hennis and Harold Stonerock.

The donkey game is played in six innings, each inning lasting 12 minutes. Last year's Booster-Legion game ended with the Legion team on top by a 3-2 tally.

• • •

JOHN ANDERSON, Shaw, Moon and Stonerock are to be the contestants in the "Lady Godiva" race at intermission. Purpose of the race is for one of the contestants on each team to don ladies' garb at home plate, mount the donkey and race to second base where the clothes are taken off and stuffed into a suitcase. Then the suitcase is handed to the second member of the team, who repeats the procedure, winding up operations at home plate.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller will toss out the first ball to open the game, and Booster President John Heiskell will announce the game.

Leon Sims, member of both clubs, will be arbiter for the game.

Lake County Calls Off Races

PAINESVILLE, May 5 — The scheduled harness racing meet June 25 to July 19 at the Lake County fairgrounds here has been called off.

E. F. Gongwer, general manager of the Painesville Racing Association, announced yesterday that "due to conflicting dates with Toledo and other tracks in Ohio," the association was forced to cancel the meet.

He said directors of the meet feared a shortage of entries.

Champ Tribe Said A Bit Like Midas

Indians Win Tilt With Old Trades

NEW YORK, May 5—It was becoming increasingly easy to believe in the World's Champion Cleveland Indians today. For one thing, they have a way of making it easy—they so clearly believe in themselves.

Another thing: They seem to have what the fashioners of literary-lace sometimes call the Midas touch.

They wave the magic wand, and everything turns to gold. For instance, take yesterday's insignificant 4-3 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics in the season's first major intersectional meeting:

The Indians make a deal with the Yankees a couple of years ago, and come up with Gene Bearden, unknown then, but the do-or-don't guy of Cleveland's 1948 rise to a world's championship. Gene made it three straight yesterday, but couldn't go the full nine.

* *

WHEN HE faltered, in came Al Benton, whom the Indians picked off the scrap heap a week ago. Benton quickly snuffed out the A's rally.

That didn't win the pennant, of course. It merely won a hybrid single-game series and didn't, in any way, alter the fact that those crazy-joe Yankees kept winning in St. Louis, 10-5.

This, in fact, rounded out a Yankee record of 12 out of their first 15 for a percentage of .800 and a three-game lead over the second-place Indians and Tigers.

As for the Indians, if in any lingering doubt about theirs being the sort of opportunism of which pennants are made, have yourself this second helping in touch-of-gold data:

Joe Gordon, also taken in trade from the Yankees a few years back, belted successive homers in the second and third innings yesterday; Mickey Vernon, obtained from Washington in last Winter's deal, also hit a third-inning homer; ditto Dale Mitchell.

That's strictly maximum-effect stuff—four belts, four runs, final score, 4-3.

Meantime, the Tigers were beating the Red Sox, 5-1, via Virgil Trucks' three-hitter, to drop the American League co-favorite down below the .500 and save the west from a complete rout as the second day of intersectional skirmishing came to a close. Even so, it wound up a strongly pro-eastern day — and night.

That section, for instance, swept the card in the National League—the Giants making it two straight from the Pirates, 11-4; the Dodgers likewise against the Reds, 5-1; and the Phillies repeating against the Cardinals, 7-5.

* *

THE LONE CHANGE from the first-day's script was the champion Braves' comeback against the Cubs, 4-3, to even the series and retain their one-game clutch on first place. This one was all over in a few minutes, the Braves knocking Dutch Leonard loose from his knuckle-joint by scoring the fourth and winning run in the opening inning.

Add to these developments, Washington's second straight over the White Sox, 8-7, in the American, and you have this two-day reading of the intersectional meter:

East, 11 victories; West, 3; one tie.

Racing Panel Readies Meet

COLUMBUS, May 5—The Ohio State Racing Commission meets today with its track inspectors for the last time before the Ohio racing season opens Saturday at Beulah Park.

Beulah Park stewards were to start today, passing on license applications from jockeys, owners and trainers. Stewards Tom Sanford, E. W. Stribling and R. W. Saxton work in close cooperation with the racing commission.

8 Events Set Up For Free Harness Race Card Sunday

Eight races have been set up for the third free harness racing matinee to be staged Sunday at Pickaway Fairgrounds.

Officials of the county harness racing club, sponsors of the affair, said Thursday all indications point to one of the best performances of the early season come Mother's Day.

The eight races—two heats in four different classes—will be offered at the fairgrounds half-mile track with no admission charge made either to the fairgrounds or to the track area.

First warmups will get underway about 1 p. m. Sunday with the first event shortly thereafter.

A mobile starting gate again will be utilized. It will be operated by the official starter, Howard Jewett of Portsmouth. He was here for the initial free matinee.

A few new names appear on the roster for Sunday's event—at least two of them owned and driven by McKinley Kirk, Fayette countian whose stable trained here year before last but who strayed away last Winter.

* * *

A POSSIBLE starter next Sunday—it all depends on his temperament—is the wonder horse, Frank Jackson.

This little bay colt has broken all rules of horsedom—he has ignored the fact that he once had a compound leg fracture.

While still a yearling, Frank Jackson suffered an accident.

His owner, McKinley Kirk, a man who thinks twice about disposing of any standardbred regardless of means of disposal, was a hurt man the day he looked down at Frank Jackson's right leg. The foot was twisted with fetlock joint open and the bones protruding.

But Kirk's faith and the near-genious ability of an Ohio State university specialist, Dr. W. F. Guard, brought the colt normal use of his leg.

Since then, Kirk and his chief trainer—C. M. Turner, who ignores the fact that he, himself, has no hands—have continued the sulky training of Frank Jackson.

Go to the races? Turner answers that question quickly. He says:

"Sure, he's going to the races."

And that wonder horse, Frank Jackson, the colt who was spared the usual end of a bullet in the head, might well be on the starting line here Sunday afternoon.

Thursday, Kirk was not absolutely sure.

* * *

FRANK JACKSON was a bit "under the weather" earlier in the week and the Fayette countian was plannin to take no chances. He said:

"If Frank Jackson is feeling any way near par, he will be there Sunday afternoon."

Two other Kirk horses definitely will be here Sunday.

They are Gay Abbe and New Discovery, both of whom are slated to start making the rounds of the various sulky races throughout the nation in the near future.

Meanwhile, George W. VanCamp, spokesman for the local harness club, reported that the following tentative card has been drawn up for Sunday's free matinee. Each event will call for two heats. The drawing:

CLASS A—Air Pilot, owned and driven by VanCamp; La Chimes, owned and driven by Clarence Myers; Lee Stone, owned by James Taylor and trained by Lou Huber; The Chimes, owned by Clarence Wolf and trained by Joe Wolfe; and Billy Short, owned and trained by Robert Taylor.

CLASS B—Delia Counsel, owned and trained by Preston Butler; Ann Harmony, owned by W. L. Denny and trained by Wolfe; Gay Abbe, owned and trained by Kirk, and Admiral, owned and trained by Porter Martin.

CLASS C—Mary Morris, owned by George Fissell and trained by Art Morris; Jolly Baron, owned by Raymond Westenhaver and trained by Huber; Miss Cleo B, owned by Lottie Reed and trained by Huber; and Miss Mite, owned and trained by Forrest Short.

CLASS D—Beck Ann, owned and trained by Merle Thornton; Royal Sann, owned by Myers and trained by Taylor; Haynesworthy, owned by Preston Butler and trained by Taylor; New Discovery, owned and trained by Kirk; and Lady Chesterfield, owned and trained by Martin.

Oilers, Ashville To End First Softball Week

Ashville and the Oilers softball teams will wind up the first week of Circleville Night Softball League play at 8 p. m. Thursday in Ted Lewis Park.

Wednesday's session of the league saw Hoovers come from behind in the final frames of the game to post a 3-2 win over Boyers. The Hoover win came as the result of six hits and one error, while Boyers suffered the loss on three hits and two errors.

Softball fans were wondering, however, as they left the park after the game, what actually would be the final outcome of the game, since it was announced that it was being played under protest.

Ernest (Snapper) Ankrom of Boyers launched the protest on a series of events at home plate, in which the catcher allegedly dropped the ball on the last strike.

As it occurred, Boyers were batting with two men out. The Boyer batter took a cut at the third strike and Hoover Catcher Paul Smallwood allegedly dropped the ball.

The Boyer batter made as if to retire from the field, then jaunted downfirst baseline as the Hoovers' trooped in from the field. Umpire Dave Walters said the ball was fairly caught, ruling the man out.

Dick Wellington was credited with the win for his Hoover aggregation, while Kenneth Reid was charged with the Boyer loss.

Line score of the match follows:

		R	H	E
Hoovers ...	000 1011—3	6	1
Boyers	001 0001—2	3	2

Softball Games Get Court Rules

PORTSMOUTH, May 5—Night softball games in Portsmouth has a "go-ahead" today, but conditions were set down by court order.

An injunction suit by several property owners to stop the games ended late yesterday in a compromise agreement which permitted play five nights a week under these conditions:

There will be no playoff series, no lights after 10 p. m., and no loud speakers. Sanitary facilities will be provided for at least 500 fans, the city will provide extra lights for alleys, protection of nearby property and additional traffic safety officers.

Ashville Wins Tourney Trip; Bests Darby

Ashville Bronco baseball team earned a crack at the Central District tournament Wednesday when it defeated an invading Darby Trojan team 6-4.

The two teams met in Community Park Wednesday to decide which of the pair would travel to the Columbus tourney.

With the Darby win under its belt, the Bronco team is slated to open the district playoffs at 2:30 p. m. Saturday against University high school at Ohio State university.

A win over University in the tourney opener would pit the Ashvillers against Lancaster St. Mary's at Upper Arlington at 4 p. m. Monday.

Altogether there are 17 teams entering the district playoffs, with the two winners of the semi-finals to travel to the regional tourney. Semi-finals will be held on May 13.

Ashville opened its game with Darby Wednesday with a single tally in the first frame, building the lead into 2-0 in the second inning with another marker.

* * *

BOTH TEAMS were scoreless through the third and fourth frames, but Darby threatened with one run in the fifth and annexed the lead in the sixth round with a trio of runs, making the score 4-2 for Darby.

Ashville, however, found its collective batting eye in the remainder of the sixth to knock in four tallies and score the win on a 6-4 count.

Ashville's Richard Wilson was credited with the win in the match, while Darby's Hill was charged with the loss.

Local Thinlies Outclassed In 3-Way Meeting

Circleville high school tracksters trailed in last place in a triangular meet at Columbus South with Upper Arlington Wednesday.

The CHS'ers scored only two first place positions in the meet for 32 points, while the South squad tallied 70 points for the win. Upper Arlington was in the second slot with 46 points.

Jack Young registered one of Circleville's first places with a 54.4 second 440-yd. dash, while Charles Sabine marked the other in the highjump at a height of 5 feet, 7 inches.

Circleville's next scheduled meet is to be here with Lancaster Golden Gales next Friday.

Statistics on the Wednesday triangular follow:

120 Yd. High Hurdles—(16.5 sec.)—Winebar (S), Stoia (S), Egel (A), Phillips (C).

Wehmeier Gets Red Mound Bid

BROOKLYN, May 5 — Young Hermie Wehmeier will face Brooklyn for Cincinnati today in the final of a three game series which has put the Redlegs flat on their backs.

The game yesterday went 5-1 to the Dodgers who used Lefty Joe Hatten. Howard Fox, Kenny Burkhart and Rookie Frank Fanovich manhandled the mound for the Reds.

Cincinnati bunched two bingles with a pass to score their lone run in the fourth, but by the end of the inning, the Dodgers were ahead 2-1. Dem Bums put it on ice in the sixth with three runs when Duke Snider singled and Jackie Robinson and Campanella doubled to be followed by another single from Gil Hodges.

Champ Tribe Said A Bit Like Midas

Indians Win Tilt With Old Trades

NEW YORK, May 5—It was becoming increasingly easy to believe in the World's Champion Cleveland Indians today. For one thing, they have a way of making it easy—they so clearly believe in themselves.

Another thing: They seem to have what the fashioners of literary-lace sometimes call the Midas touch.

They wave the magic wand, and everything turns to gold. For instance, take yesterday's insignificant 4-3 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics in the season's first major intersectional meeting:

The Indians make a deal with the Yankees a couple of years ago, and come up with Gene Bearden, unknown then, but the do-or-don't guy of Cleveland's 1948 rise to a world's championship. Gene made it three straight yesterday, but couldn't go the full nine.

• •

WHEN HE faltered, in came Al Benton, whom the Indians picked off the scrap heap a week ago. Benton quickly snuffed out the A's rally.

That didn't win the pennant, of course. It merely won a hybrid single-game series and didn't, in any way, alter the fact that those crazy-joe Yankees kept winning in St. Louis, 10-5.

This, in fact, rounded out a Yankee record of 12 out of their first 15 for a percentage of .800 and a three-game lead over the second-place Indians and Tigers.

As for the Indians, if in any lingering doubt about theirs being the sort of opportunism of which pennants are made, have yourself this second helping in touch-of-gold data:

Joe Gordon, also taken in trade from the Yankees a few years back, belted successive homers in the second and third innings yesterday; Mickey Vernon, obtained from Washington in last Winter's deal, also hit a third-inning homer; ditto Dale Mitchell.

That's strictly maximum-effect stuff—four belts, four runs, final score, 4-3.

Meantime, the Tigers were beating the Red Sox, 5-1, via Virgil Trucks' three-hitter, to drop the American League co-favorite down below the .500 and save the west from a complete rout as the second day of intersectional skirmishing came to a close. Even so, it wound up a strongly pro-eastern day — and night.

That section, for instance, swept the card in the National League—the Giants making it two straight from the Pirates, 11-4; the Dodgers likewise against the Reds, 5-1; and the Phillies repeating against the Cardinals, 7-5.

• • •

Council Gives First Reading To Street-Fix Measure

$7,000 Job Is Pondered By Solons

Alleys Also Listed For Improvements

An ordinance to appropriate $5,000 from the gas tax fund and $2,000 from the auto street repair fund has received first reading in Circleville city council. The appropriations would be used to surface treat streets and alleys in Circleville.

If the ordinance is passed the following streets will be treated:

Atwater street, a portion of Park street, sides of Elm street, east end of Logan street, south end of Clinton street, Weldon and Barnes Avenues, Ohio street from Clinton street to the corporation line, west end of Half avenue, Washington street from the railroad to Mill street, Abernathy, Eastmoore and the north end of Fairview avenues.

Alleys that would receive treatment are:

East and west between Main and Franklin streets, north and southeast of Scioto street between Franklin and Water streets, second alley west of Court street between Watt and Water streets, first alley north of Pinckney between Western avenue and Pickaway street.

* * *

SECOND ALLEY east of Scioto street between Pinckney and West Main streets, first alley east of Pickaway between Water and Union streets, first alley east of Court street between Mill and Mound streets, first alley south of Mound between Scioto and Pickaway streets, Lovers Lane to Fairview avenue.

Parts of the alley south of Franklin street between Court and Mingo streets, first alley east of Pickaway between Main and Mound streets, alley between Cussins and Fearn and Sharff's stores east to J. Stout alley, first alley south of Pleasant street from Court street east to Pickaway street.

Kippy Kit alley, Short alley at Stone's Grill and at Barnhill's dry cleaning establishment, alley west of Catholic church from Mound to Franklin streets, alley between Mound and Franklin streets from Scioto street to Pickaway County Court House.

Alley between Court and Scioto streets from Mound to Ohio streets, Fry's alley from Court to Pickaway streets, east end of Long alley, and the alley between Water street and Western avenue to Pickaway street.

Councilman Ray Anderson indicated that later in the Summer additional streets and alleys would receive treatment.

Safe-Cracker Said To Be Son Of Pen Official

COLUMBUS, May 5—Columbus detectives today identified a talkative, suave Hollywood script writer turned safe-cracker as the son of an official at Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia.

They said that the 29-year-old suspect now held under $25,000 bond on his plea of guilty to 11 safe robberies in Columbus, was Edgar Scott Flohr.

He originally told police his name was Kenneth L. Scott and identified himself as an ex-actor.

The handsome, sleepy-eyed burglar and his 28-year-old "apprentice," Thomas N. Reilly of Darby, Pa., confessed a wave of 70 West Coast safe crackings in addition to the Columbus burglaries when arrested last week by detectives.

A check with Pennsylvania authorities showed that Flohr—or Scott—attended the University of Pennsylvania as he had claimed. They said that he had a wife and possibly some children in Philadelphia.

Flohr's unofficial confession to police revealed bizarre exploits, including a wall-climbing feat on a four-story building which ended with the two suspects cracking an empty safe.

HE SAID HE had obtained a job with a safe manufacturing firm after leaving Hollywood, and said he had "studied hard" at his chosen profession of burglary. He said that he was teaching Reilly the tricks of the trade.

The "expert" startled police when he opened a department safe believed to be burglar-proof in about five minutes by merely working the combination.

Said one detective at the time: "What he does to a safe I wouldn't believe if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes."

An average of 141.2 people live on every square mile of land in Europe. This is more than three times as many as in the United States, which has only 44.2 persons per square mile.

Dunn Measure Pops Up Again

COLUMBUS, May 5 — He "dunn" it again!

The Ohio house Tuesday passed 86-35 the perennial bill of Rep. Pat Dunn (D-Tuscarawas), prohibiting the employment of both husband and wife on the state payroll, excepting in welfare institutions.

Dunn—who happens to be a bachelor—has introduced the bill in every one of his eight terms. It was passed by the house four years ago but died in the senate.

There are 35 locks on the Erie branch of the New York state barge canal; 11 on the Champlain, seven on the Oswego, and four on the Cayuga and Seneca.

Council Gives First Reading To Street-Fix Measure

$7,000 Job Is Pondered By Solons

Alleys Also Listed For Improvements

An ordinance to appropriate $5,000 from the gas tax fund and $2,000 from the auto street repair fund has received first reading in Circleville city council. The appropriations would be used to surface treat streets and alleys in Circleville.

If the ordinance is passed the following streets will be treated:

Atwater street, a portion of Park street, sides of Elm street, east end of Logan street, south end of Clinton street, Weldon and Barnes Avenues, Ohio street from Clinton street to the corporation line, west end of Half avenue, Washington street from the railroad to Mill street, Abernathy, Eastmoore and the north end of Fairview avenues.

Alleys that would receive treatment are:

East and west between Main and Franklin streets, north and southeast of Scioto street between Franklin and Water streets, second alley west of Court street between Watt and Water streets, first alley north of Pinckney between Western avenue and Pickaway street.

* * *

SECOND ALLEY east of Scioto street between Pinckney and West Main streets, first alley east of Pickaway between Water and Union streets, first alley east of Court street between Mill and Mound streets, first alley south of Mound between Scioto and Pickaway streets, Lovers Lane to Fairview avenue.

Parts of the alley south of Franklin street between Court and Mingo streets, first alley east of Pickaway between Main and Mound streets, alley between Cussins and Fearn and Sharff's stores east to J. Stout alley, first alley south of Pleasant street from Court street east to Pickaway street.

Kippy Kit alley, Short alley at Stone's Grill and at Barnhill's dry cleaning establishment, alley west of Catholic church from Mound to Franklin streets, alley between Mound and Franklin streets from Scioto street to Pickaway County Court House.

Alley between Court and Scioto streets from Mound to Ohio streets, Fry's alley from Court to Pickaway streets, east end of Long alley, and the alley between Water street and Western avenue to Pickaway street.

Councilman Ray Anderson indicated that later in the Summer additional streets and alleys would receive treatment.

Safe-Cracker Said To Be Son Of Pen Official

COLUMBUS, May 5—Columbus detectives today identified a talkative, suave Hollywood script writer turned safe-cracker as the son of an official at Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia.

They said that the 29-year-old suspect now held under $25,000 bond on his plea of guilty to 11 safe robberies in Columbus, was Edgar Scott Flohr.

He originally told police his name was Kenneth L. Scott and identified himself as an ex-actor.

The handsome, sleepy-eyed burglar and his 28-year-old "apprentice," Thomas N. Reilly of Darby, Pa., confessed a wave of 70 West Coast safe crackings in addition to the Columbus burglaries when arrested last week by detectives.

A check with Pennsylvania authorities showed that Flohr—or Scott—attended the University of Pennsylvania as he had claimed. They said that he had a wife and possibly some children in Philadelphia.

Flohr's unofficial confession to police revealed bizarre exploits, including a wall-climbing feat on a four-story building which ended with the two suspects cracking an empty safe.
